FBI STAGES DOUBLE RAID IN CHICAGO

Third Member of Notorious Gang Reported Shot In Arm and Seized.

G-Men Spring Trap In Complete Secrecy With Hoover Leading Round-Up.

BULLETIN
CHICAGO—(AP)—All seven of the "terrible" Touhy long term gangsters who shot their way to freedom from Stateville penitentiary at Joliet, Ill., Oct. 9 have been accounted for with the slaying of two of them and the capture of the other five, FBI Chief Edgar Hoover announced today.

(By Associated Press)
CHICAGO—Roger "Terrible" Touhy and Basil "The Owl" Banghart, two of the nation's most desperate criminals, were captured alive by federal agents today in the second of two swift raids on north side apartments in which two members of the gang were killed. Sumnerdale police, who announced the raid in which the two were seized, said it was "led personally by FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover."

Other members of the gang, the police said, had been traced to a third north side apartment, but it was not determined immediately whether any others were captured. Minutes later, however, it was reported a third but unidentified gangster, wounded in the arm probably in the first raid, also was captured.

Hoover was heard to remark: "The Touhy mob is just about cleaned up."
He led 50 agents and policemen in the second raid. Touhy and Banghart were reported captured without a struggle.

The police said they assisted FBI agents in the raid in which Touhy and Banghart were captured in an apartment. This apartment is only a few blocks from one in which the two gangsters were slain in a hall of machine gun and pistol bullets shortly before last midnight.

The men slain were identified by Police Lieut. Harry Penzen as James O'Connor, 35, robber, and St. Clair McInerney, 31, safe blower. Two of the seven desperadoes (Continued on Page 16, Col. 5)

Wallace Calls for Supervision of German and Jap Schools In 'Blueprint for Post-War Free World'

(By United Press)
WASHINGTON—Vice President Henry A. Wallace, continuing the sketching of a blueprint for a post-war world, today envisions a "free world democracy" for all the world but believes the United Nations will have to supervise or inspect the school systems of Germany and Japan after the war. In the post-war world, according to Wallace, there must be jobs for everyone and security for all the world—victors and vanquished—from depression and war. To achieve that there must be a world council and a world court with a "minimum of centralization and a maximum of home rule," he said.

Wallace has described his "free world democracy" as the logical success of President Roosevelt's New Deal of 1933 which followed the "new freedom" for which Woodrow Wilson fought; the welfare of the common man is the keynote of all three.

Wallace has become the major spokesman for the New Deal on post-war plans. Last May he first proclaimed that the people were on the march and that World War II was "the march of freedom for the common man."

Driving Deep Into Caucasus From Ukraine

Storm Close To Nazi Siege Base While Other Army Pushes To Within 120 Miles Of Rostov; Renewal Of Tunis Battle Expected.

BULLETIN
MOSCOW—(UP)—The Red army developed a pincer movement against Rostov today by driving southward down the Voronezh railroad to within less than 80 miles of the city and breaking into the Rostov administrative district from the northeast.

(By Associated Press)
Adolf Hitler's cry for "living space" echoed with terrible urgency for 22 German divisions on the Soviet front today as the Russians stormed within three miles of Kotelnikovsky, 90 miles southwest of Stalingrad, and thrust within 45 miles of a junction with Red army troops driving across the middle Don steppes toward Rostov.

Dispatches said Kotelnikovsky, which served as a main base for the Nazi siege armies before Stalingrad, was now hemmed tightly on three sides.
By closing the 45-mile gap between Kotelnikovsky and the middle Don, Col. Gen. Nikolai F. Valtutin's legions would forge a second ring of steel around the beleaguered Nazis.

Latest advices said the Red armies were driving ahead on a 300-mile front spreading fanwise from the Ukraine to a point deep in the wind-swept Kalmyck steppelands of the Caucasus. Soviet troops were reported to have recaptured Kichino, 42 miles north of Elista, the Kalmyck capital.

Other Red army columns were pictured as having advanced within 100 miles of Rostov, gateway to the Caucasus. After having virtually surrounded the German rail hub at Millerovo, 120 miles north of Rostov.

Nazi quarters asserted vaguely that a Russian force "encircled" for several days in the Don river bend had been "routed" with heavy losses.
A Finnish communiqué said Red army troops, ending a protracted lull on the far north front, had launched attacks against Finnish lines between Lakes Ladoga and Onega, east of long besieged Leningrad, but declared they had been repulsed.

Soviet headquarters said Hitler was throwing reinforcements into the middle Don region in a desperate attempt to check the Russian juggernaut, "but under the blows of our men they are suffering huge losses."
Front-line reports said the Germans had already lost more than 120,000 killed or captured in the flaming middle Don battle cauldron alone, and more than 21,000 others were listed as slain since Dec. 12 in the drive toward Kotelnikovsky.

In the last four days, the Russians said, Soviet columns approaching Kotelnikovsky from three directions advanced from 37 to 53 miles, including gains of 13 (Continued on Page 2, Col. 1)

STILL RISING
Streams In County Continue At Flood Stage.
No relief from rain is promised by Ohio's weatherman for the next 24 hours as Richland county streams continued on their rampage, overflowing their banks and flooding lowlands in many sectors.

"Occasional rain in north portion with scattered showers, southern portion today and scattered showers tonight," is the weather outlook for the immediate future.
At Cincinnati the Ohio river stage rose to 33 feet, or 19 feet below flood stage and observers predict the river probably will crest at 42 to 45 feet by the end of the week.

In the Mansfield area Tuesday was the sixth day of fog and rain and mist.

Judge Hurls Gambling Challenge

Arrest of 'Small Fry' Draws Criticism as Jurist Takes Up Slot Machine Case.

Municipal Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch today hurled a sharp challenge to the city's law enforcement officers to either enforce existing gambling laws or call for their repeal.
His challenge, delivered from the bench this morning as he passed sentence in a gambling case, mentioned no names but its phrasing left little doubt that he meant Mayor W. J. Locke and Police Chief Thomas M. Bell.
Apparently the word had been passed around that "fireworks" could be expected and a packed gallery included many faces known in gambling circles and "club" operations was on hand for the court session.

In firing Joe Sapranio, North Main street cigar store owner, $100 and costs for possession of three slot machines seized by police last week, Judge Kalbfleisch referred to the defendant as "small fry."
"Within this very month," the judge cited, "another 'small fry' operator who was only a seller of numbers tickets was brought before me. Surely I am not to believe that he runs the numbers games any more than I am to believe that Sapranio is the major offender with his machines."

"So long as this spotty type of enforcement continues the general public will be entitled to challenge the honesty and integrity of all of us charged with the responsibility of enforcing the law."

WPB Promises Fair Share Of Stocks To Small Businesses

(By United Press)
WASHINGTON—Small business concerns—the kind that serve suburban neighborhoods and cross-towns—today received a promise from the War Production board that in the future they can expect a more equitable distribution of dwindling stocks of furniture, clothing and other consumers' goods.

The WPB has set up controls over the size of stock inventories of large manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers which eventually will force concerns like big department stores to share their merchandise more equitably with smaller ones.

Mansfield and Butler Men In Casualty List

Wife Told Seaman Perished; Pilot Garber

War's tragedy came to two more Richland county homes today with the death of a Mansfield seaman announced by the navy department and a Butler flier reported missing in action over North Africa.

Mrs. Audrey Hyatt, 398 Hammond avenue, was informed that her husband, Elmer Hyatt, 34, seaman second class, lost his life Aug. 29 while at sea. He was reported missing in October. Mrs. Hyatt was told, however, that her husband earned a posthumous award for bravery for his attempts to save two fellow seamen. All perished.

At Butler, Mrs. Winnie Knowlton Garber received word from the war department that her husband, First Lieut. Clark M. Garber, jr., 23, has been missing since Nov. 17 in action over the Mediterranean sea.
Lieut. Garber, member of a prominent Butler family, had been overseas since last June and engaged in air raids over the continent before he was shifted to the North Africa war zone.

Late last summer he wrote his family of a narrow escape from death when the bomber he was (Continued on Page 2, Col. 3)

FINDS CARRIER

Official Traces Small-Pox Spread to Pastor's Wife.

COLUMBUS—(UP)—Dr. R. H. Markwith, state health director, said today he had definitely traced an outbreak of smallpox affecting 13 members of an Ohio Amish community to Pennsylvania, where 35 persons are ill with the disease.

Smallpox spread in a Wayne-Holmes county settlement following return of a minister's wife who became ill after attending a series of Amish wedding parties in Pennsylvania, Markwith asserted.

The minister, his wife, three children and his father-in-law and mother-in-law now have the disease, he added.
Although Amish generally object to inoculation, 800 members of the community have been vaccinated and several hundred other "contacts" have been immunized, including 300 in Marion county, where the state's only other case was reported, Markwith declared.

FORMER CONVICT CONFESSES SEX MURDER OF GIRL

Detective Reports Man, 57, Makes Statement After Long Grilling.

(By International News Service)
CINCINNATI—Acting Detective Chief Patrick Hayes announced today that Tony Treat, 57-year-old former convict, has admitted the Christmas eve sex slaying of 10-year-old Helen Sellers, an epileptic.

Chief Hayes said that Treat has been taken before County Prosecutor Carson Hoy where a written confession to the crime was being taken.
Previously, throughout hours of continuous grilling Treat, a painter, had steadfastly maintained that he had no connection with the crime.

Hayes quoted Treat as saying he had received a Christmas drink on the night the Sellers girl was last seen alive and "didn't know exactly what happened."
Neighbors said the child was seen in a cafe begging nickels on Christmas eve. Persons questioned by police said that Treat was seen in the same cafe. According to Chief Hayes, he at first denied any knowledge of Helen's presence but later admitted giving her a nickel.

The day after Christmas the girl's badly bruised body was found in an abandoned freight house.
Robinson said he would not seek an appropriation from the county commissioners for such construction and repairs until he determined definitely what materials were available, their approximate cost, and details of getting a priority order. Confering early today with Ora Yola, vice president of Mansfield Structural and Erecting company, he was informed that the company had a part of the necessary materials on hand and that a priority release order could be obtained beyond much doubt.

Meanwhile, dozens of clues were being run down in an effort to locate the youth who was trailed as far as Sparta, O. Bernard (Continued on Page 2, Col. 4)

BRITISH PUSH THROUGH BURMA

Advance 75 Miles as Yanks Deepen Wedge In Japan Position at Buna.

(By Associated Press)
Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell's legions driving back into Japanese-conquered Burma from India were officially reported today to have reached the vicinity of Rathedaung, 25 miles northwest of the big enemy base at Akyak, after a 75-mile advance through treacherous coastal swamps from the Indian frontier.

A British communiqué said Gen. Wavell's patrols clashed briefly with Japanese troops near Rathedaung on the night of Dec. 27, and the enemy retreated after an exchange of fire.
The drive to Rathedaung, seven miles inland from the bay of Bengal coast, represented an advance of approximately 20 miles from Akyak, which British troops captured a week ago.

At the same time, roundabout reports from Japanese-dominated Bangkok, Thailand, said that British troops had reached the Chindwin river valley in Burma in a push through the Chin hills to the north.

There was still no indication that Gen. Wavell had launched a major campaign to recapture Burma, but the swift retirement of (Continued on Page 2, Col. 2)

Tire Inspectors Busy As Drivers Eye Jan. 31 Deadline

Richland county's 65 tire inspection stations are busy these days looking over tires of passenger cars with business expected to increase as the Jan. 31 deadline nears.

The inspection period, named in OPA regulations and announced by the local gasoline panel, began Dec. 1 with only a few motorists coming in early in the period. Despite any rush, the local panel does not plan to certify any more inspectors than those already announced, W. J. Spreng, chairman said.

War price schedules have been set up and posted at the inspection places. Not more than 25 cents will be charged per car if no tires are removed; if a tire is demounted, the fee may be 50 cents per tire, plus the basic inspection charge.

Inspections every four months, and at least 60 days apart, will be required of holders of basic "A" and "B" gasoline ration books. Owners of "B," "C" or supplemental "D" books must have their tires inspected every two months with inspections 30 days apart.

To facilitate the inspections, gasoline panel members have asked that automobile owners whose last names begin with letters A through H arrange for inspections before Jan. 10; those with letters I through R before Jan. 20, and from S through the remainder of the alphabet before Jan. 27, with only emergency cases to be handled the last four days of the period.

BROADWAY

Manhattan Nights.
Morton Downey has been dreaming of a White Christmas—but not like the one he used to know.
It happened in 1934, Morton, whose star was in the ascendant in three firms—on the screen, on the stage and on the radio—probably was the busiest performer in the United States. The weeks before the Yuletide season were frantic ones, divided hecticly between movie re-takes, radio rehearsals, and an important vaudeville date in Los Angeles.
And yet Morton wired the Downeys at the family hearth in Wallingford, Conn., to say that he could be expected home on Christmas Eve, but that this news was to be kept from the Downey children as the great, big holiday surprise.
By the most acrobatic scramblings of his schedule, Morton contrived to fly out of Hollywood on the night before Christmas Eve. He did not pause to delay when he alighted from the plane at Newark, but leaped directly into a car he had ordered to be at the airport, and began the motor race to Wallingford to keep his promise.
The drive went smoothly until he reached New Canaan. On the highway there, the temperature had taken a drop and there was a freeze in the road. Downey's car skidded and landed in a soft shoulder. He landed in the new Canaan hospital with a badly sprained ankle.
But the room he was in was snow white, the doctors and nurses were in purest white, and also—

HOLLYWOOD—Walt Disney extends a gracious hand to Latin America in "Saludos Amigos," the first film result of the youth American tour he made in 1941 with his party of artists and it's the kind of hand, one imagines, that our southern neighbors have been wanting. NELSON DENIES ARMED SERVICE, WPB CLASHING

Says There Have Been Some Misunderstandings But No Fight Over Munitions.
(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON—There has been no light between the war production board and the armed services over control of munitions production or control of the civilian economy, WPB Chairman Donald M. Nelson says.
Nelson today authorized reporters to make public some of the reciprocal statements made by him at a press conference last Thursday.
There have been mis-conceptions and lack of understanding, he acknowledged, but he declared he was absolutely certain there now was no opposition in the services to the production scheduling work newly undertaken by his production vice chairman, Charles E. Wilson, former president of General Electric company.
Control of the civilian economy has never been a fundamental issue in the relations between WPB and the army, Nelson declared.
There always will be differences of opinion as long as strong men have charge of the various aspects of the program, he went on. Nelson said it was his honest judgment the merging of viewpoints was in better shape today than it has ever been.
To illustrate his point Nelson took programs not connected with the army or navy: High Octane gasoline and rubber.
The heads of two such programs are bound to be in opposition to each other, Nelson said. The man in charge of rubber, for example, says we must have rubber regardless of anything else; but he added you can certainly lose the war if you don't have hundred-octane gasoline.
Both types of plant use many of the same components.
Nelson said his job was to reconcile these points to conflict so that all important programs move forward together and we get hundred-octane gasoline to keep the planes flying at the same time we get rubber to keep the mechanized army rolling.

PREPARE PLAN TO HALT ANY PANIC BUYING

Ration Officials Confer on Counter-Measure Should 'Run' Develop.
(By United Press)
WASHINGTON—Rationing authorities indicated today that, if necessary, they might "freeze" the sale of all canned goods to forestall any threat of widespread panic buying.
Americans generally, they said, appeared to be hoarding "freezes" the sale of all canned goods to forestall any threat of widespread panic buying.
The government's appeal was made in a broadcast Sunday night by Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard following an announcement that all canned, dried and frozen fruits and vegetables will be rationed on a "point" system in February.
High rationing authorities conferred yesterday on action to be taken if a general run should develop. A general "freeze" on all sales was regarded as the most likely counter-measure.
Officials hoped that the government's appeal and the informal rationing system already imposed by many retailers would suffice to prevent store shelves being cleaned out in the next few weeks.
There still was no indication of what the final canned goods ration will be. Wickard indicated that total supplies in 1943 would not exceed 33 pounds per person. Officials said it would be erroneous to assume that the ration will be about three one-pound cans a month.
They point out that a large number of factors have to be taken into account—for example, that some types of canned foods are much more popular than others. Rationing authorities, they said, presently are engaged in the complex job of computing the "point" values of hundreds of individual canned items, and this task was not expected to be completed before the end of January.
Rationing of canned goods to restaurants, hotels and other institutions will be designed to make consumption cuts proportionate to those imposed on the general public, officials said.

TELLS DRAFT PROSPECTS TO GO BACK TO COLLEGE 'TIL CALLED

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON—College students who are uncertain about their military status and wondering what to do after the holidays were advised today:
"Go back to school and stay there until actually called into military service."
Dr. Francis J. Brown, consultant for the American council on education, termed this the wisest plan—regardless of whether students belong to the enlisted reserves or are subject only to draft board action.
In giving his advice, Brown said countless college youths were "up in the air" over whether they should return to school after the holidays.
Members of the enlisted reserve who will be affected by the new military training program will not be called for some time yet, he said, adding many civilian students who remain in school will get temporary draft deferments and some eventually may have their tuition paid by the government.

He already has warned the entertainment industry that when the present engagements of chorus girls in this age group come to an end, no more permits will be issued to them.

Those engaged for their specialty performances, or those in a team which would be put out of balance if one of its members had to leave may be given short deferments. But such deferment is only on condition that the majority of their regular audiences are service men.

DOUBLE-THREAT TO JAPS
LOS ANGELES—(UP)—Russell and Robert Harding, 18-year-old identical twins, who have just volunteered as naval aviation cadets, are hoping ardently that the nickname by which they were known all through their high school career will mean what it says to the Japs. It was "Double Trouble."

HERE'S A 1943 RESOLUTION FOR ALL TO MAKE

Budget Your Money, Fuel and Food, If You Want to End Year Happily.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Three New Year resolutions should be high on everybody's list: budget, budget, budget.

Or you're apt to find yourself broke, cold and hungry (for some things).

1. Budget your money carefully. Better figure out your income tax pronto if you haven't done so already, because it's going to be a jolt. And remember, there's less chance that you'll get a rise in pay in 1943.

2. Budget your fuel—oil, particularly, or you'll run short.

3. Budget your food—such things as meat, butter and milk as well as sugar and coffee. Voluntary rationing in use of all commodities may help prevent compulsory rationing of more items. Now's the time to plan a victory garden in your back yard to provide fresh vegetables.

Taxes: the first 1943 effect of the new tax will be to cut down the size of your paycheck as of Jan. 1. On that date the "victory" tax starts digging into your pocketbook—5 per cent on all that you make over $12 a week.

(The deduction which your employer makes from your pay may not come out exactly to 5 per cent of the excess—that'll

Mother Denies Slaying Mate

With a nurse holding her 17-day-old baby in the courtroom, Mrs. Beatrice Bouvier, 28, calmly pleaded innocent in Ware, Mass., district court to a charge of slaying her husband, Rudolf, 32, on Dec. 8, the day before their child was born. The baby will be permitted to remain with the mother until the hearing date, Jan. 5. Mrs. Bouvier is seen, left, leaving court. The nurse carries the baby at right.

be because he's using a scale of deductions drawn up by the government to simplify his arithmetic problems; in any case, it'll add up to the same thing in the long run.)

Remember, too, that this deduction (which is in addition to the one per cent for social security) won't reduce the amount you have to pay on your regular income tax on March 15 and later due dates in 1943. The rebate-credit provision of the victory tax provides for an adjustment at tax-paying time in 1944 and annually thereafter.

So you'll have to finance your income tax out of reduced paychecks. On net income, after exemptions and contributions, etc., the rates will total 19 per cent in the lowest brackets (6 per cent normal, 13 per cent surtax).

What can you do to ease your situation? Well, if you're paying on a mortgage, try to get it refinanced, with smaller annual payments.

Make sure you get full advantage of the rebate-credit provision of the victory tax so you can apply the credit against your income tax in 1944.

To do this, figure out the credit you'll have coming (25 per cent of the victory tax for a single person, up to a limit of $500; 40 per cent for a married man, up to a $1,000 limit, plus 2 per cent for each dependent, up to $100 each.) Then see that you spend that much in 1943 for:

- 1. Life insurance premiums (on insurance in force on Sept. 1, 1942).
- 2. Reduction of outstanding debts below the lowest amount owed in the period from Sept. 1 to the end of the year.
- 3. War bonds and stamps.

If your payments for these items don't equal the total credit allowance, the rest will become post-war credit (in the form of government securities which will bear no interest and which you won't be able to transfer or cash until after the war).

FOR DEC. 29
Asks $25,000 Damages.
Edith Rae Ensminger, administratrix of estate of late husband, Arthur B. Ensminger, vs. Motor Cargo company, of Akron, for $25,000 damages resulting from her husband's death in automobile accident.

Marriage Licenses.
Issued: William Henry Wilson, Quebec, Canada, and Donna Marie Earnest, Mansfield; Leroy Snyder, 84 Flint street, and Pauline Blanche Sparks, 483 Shepherd road; Richard Earl Schaefer, 299 Reed street, and Rosemary Stanley, 233 Park drive; Edward Merle Coover, Shelby, and Amy L. Wiley, Shiloh; Stanley Frisbie, Fairfield, and Gladys Jones, Mansfield; Robert Hoffman, Shelby, and Barbara Ann Hoffman, Plymouth; Doris Vernon McLaughlin, and Sarajane Diehl, both of Mansfield.
Applied for: Richard Earl Cline, Cleveland, and Rita Mary Foss, Shelby.

Real Estate Deeds.
James M. Dickson to Albert B. Miller, et al., lot 10,386 and part of lot 10,387, in Woodland farms, Mansfield.
Paul B. Smith to Blanche E. Smith undivided half of lot 8464, Mansfield.

JUST NO COURTESY
HAYS, Kas.—(AP)—The Hays News reports that a fellow opened doors at stores, banks and other buildings for 109 women in the Christmas rush. Three thanked him, five thought he was fresh and the husbands of seven stared at him as if they thought so too.

SEA GULL LOST INLAND
RATON, N. M.—(AP)—Bill Tomasco couldn't quite believe his eyes when he picked up the bird that had collided head-on with his taxi. It was a sea gull, flying low on a Raton street more than 1,000 miles from the nearest sea and lost in the Rocky mountains.

NEW SPITFIRE CALLED FASTER

High-Powered Engine, Other Improvements Make It Terror For Axis.

LONDON—(INS)—United States Eagle pilots were transferred to American squadrons just too early to fly a new type of improved Spitfire aerial fighter announced by the British Air Ministry and now in operational use.

The improved Vickers-Supermarine Spitfire has higher fighting value, is faster and is based on hard-fighting experience. It has a Rolls-Royce Merlin engine 61 instead of the Merlin 45 or 46.

The two airframes are described as identical, but the nose of the newest Spitfire is slightly longer to take the bigger powerhouse. The chief difference in appearance lies in the wings, both of which have underslung radiators.

The radiator under the port wing, replacing the somewhat smaller oil-cooler, is associated with the engine inter-cooler, which is a feature of the two-staged super-charged Merlin 61. Differences between the two engine installations include: Very slight difference in the position of the air intake because of intercooler located immediately aft of the engine.

New multiple-type exhaust stubs replacing the triple ejector type. Four-bladed propeller.

This four-bladed propeller provides a greater blade area needed to absorb the stepped-up power output of the new engine. The diameter of the propeller arc had to be limited by the height of the aircraft from the ground. As the power of the engine was increased so has the number of blades. Armament provides new terrors for Jerry, consisting of two cannon and four machine-guns housed in the wings.

AIR PILOT AT 80
LOS ANGELES—(UP)—James W. Montee, aged 80, who first became interested in the possibilities of aviation by studying the flight of birds when he was a 9-year-old lad and finally learned to fly at the age of 60, is believed to be the oldest ranking pilot in the United States. He is a member of the Professional Pilots' association.

Big League Clubs Stay At Home

Frick Urges Early Action on Training.

By JACK MAHON

NEW YORK—(AP)—A mixed spring training program, in which major league baseball players would utilize every suitable day outdoors and complete the rest of their conditioning process indoors, was forecast today by President Ford Frick of the National League.

Frick, asked about possible training at home by the major league teams, as advocated by President Ed Barrow of the N. Y. Yankees, said, in his opinion, the idea would meet with the approval of the majority of the magnates and from his preliminary observation he thought most of the teams would try and line up indoor baseball cages or field houses as insurance against bad weather in their spring drills.

"I'd say, from the conversations I've had, the training at home, or as near home as possible, plan would be carried out," said Frick. "I've discussed this matter informally with several baseball men and most of them are trying to find indoor arenas on which they can rely in case of bad weather."

"No one can predict what the weather will be like in any one area during March and April. While most of the National League men are in favor of starting the season on time, around April 12th or 15th, I don't think there would be any cat and dog fight over delaying the start of the season if all teams were assured of an adequate training set-up."

"Branch Rickey," said Frick, "told me the last time I talked to him he saw no reason the Dodgers or anyone else couldn't get into condition in three weeks and start the season on time. He is definitely interested in the possibility of using every available day outdoors and completing the training program indoors."

Warren Giles, general manager of the Cincinnati Reds, wired Frick yesterday strenuously objecting to the "confusion" which he claims now exists pertaining to the training program.

Giles demanded Frick call a meeting of the National League, at least, if both leagues couldn't agree to get together in the near future, to work out some "well-defined program." The Red official said responsible league officials should confer with Olt Director Joseph B. Eastman, on this question and be able to submit a comprehensive report to the special joint meeting of the National and American leagues.

Brother Giles can rest his weary head for he has been informed by a most reliable source Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis, the high lama of the diamond game, has been approached by more than one baseball mogul, on the very same subject, and practically petitioned to call an emergency meeting to discuss this subject.

Said meeting will undoubtedly be called within the next two weeks and the plans of all clubs put on the table and hacked apart. Brooklyn hopes to train at New Haven, with the Yale university batting cage as indoor insurance while the Giants and Yankees may work out a scheme to utilize a spring training schedule at the Polo Grounds and Yankee stadium. Boston Red Sox announced they will train at Tufts college at nearby Medford, Mass.

While the plans of the other clubs in both circuits are equally nebulous at the moment we understand the St. Louis teams are considering Hot Springs, as a possible training site; the Chicago Cubs are eyeing French Lick Springs, Ind., and Cincinnati is reported to be inspecting some Kentucky sites.

Plans of the rest of the teams undoubtedly will not be made public until after the emergency conference when everyone will have a good cry, stop fumbling and come up with a definite, workable program, adaptable to their needs and the present emergency.

Allen Wants Hoops Raised

Says Skyscraper Cagers Spoil Present Game.

By JACK CUDDY
NEW YORK—(AP)—We leaned back stoically behind a desultory protection of ice cream and black coffee as the pink-skinned professor with the horn-rimmed spectacles rose to the occasion. But our lethargy was blasted as the man behind the rims—Dr. Forrest C. "Phog" Allen of Kansas U.—launched a scathing attack against collegiate basketball and its current misconceptions.

It seemed impossible that the vitriolic words were coming from Dr. Allen, a medium-sized man with crisp brown hair who looks like YMCA Herder. But he was giving off violently—much to the surprise of newspaper men gathered at Tools Shop's Tavern.

The theme of his verbal onslaught was: "Let's have baskets 12 feet from the floor, and nertz to the NCAA."

Dr. Allen, whose Kansas Jayhawks spoiled Fordham's escutcheon 31-30 last night at Madison Square Garden, demanded the 12-foot baskets as the only remedy to remove from the hoop game those extra-tall men of the seven-foot type whom he described as "freaks" and "glandular goons."

"Raise the baskets from their original and ante-dated 10 feet to the modern and required 12," he said, "and those skyscraper plays will be swept off the court because they'll be expected to play the game—instead of merely standing beneath the baskets as tall towers of defense."

"We've got to take the freaks out of college basketball," he continued, "because they are ruining the game that Dr. Naismith invented." He declared that "When Dr. Naismith hung his peach baskets 10 feet from the floor a half-century ago, he didn't mean that this height would prevail down through the ages. He fixed this height merely because it was comfortable in the low-ceilinged YMCA at Springfield, Mass."

Conditions have changed since then, Dr. Allen—director of physical education and basketball coach at Kansas—pointed out.

Dr. Allen snorted that the proposed height change would have been made already were it not for the "stupid backwardness" of the National Collegiate Athletic association and the lethargy of college coaches.

"The NCAA," he said, "is a money-hungry organization that fattens off the bones of college basketball, and college basketball coaches are the most backward band of mentors in all athletics. This is a deadly combination which stifles any progress in college basketball, and forces the dissatisfied college coaches to look toward the high school coaches for any improvement that may be made in the game."

Montana University Loses Four Coaches
MISSOULA, Mont.—(AP)—The University of Montana was fresh out of coaches today, having lost four to the armed forces in the last few months.

In consequence, the athletic director from the Missoula high school, E. S. Chinske, will double in brass for the remainder of the year, handling both the college and prep teams. He will take over the varsity basketball team this week.

Coaches lost by Montana were Doug Fessenden, football; Harry Adams, track; Jiggs Dahlberg, Fessenden's replacement in football; and Clyde Carpenter, basketball and Dahlberg's replacement in football who just received word to report for acceptance of a commission in the U. S. navy.

Illini After Second Title

Defending Champions Have Veteran Lineups.

By TOMMY DEVINE
CHAMPAIGN, Ill.—(AP)—Doug Mills, the youthful and resourceful University of Illinois basketball coach, eyes a long-standing Big Ten record as he prepares his team for the opening of its conference campaign.

Illinois won the undisputed Big Ten championship last season and is favored to repeat. If it accomplishes the feat it will be the first team to win two straight undisputed league crowns since Wisconsin turned the trick in 1913 and 1914.

Mills took the greatest collection of sophomores in Big Ten history a season ago and won the championship by a comfortable three-game margin. His stars of 1941-42 now are juniors and with a year's competitive experience figure to be tougher than ever.

The class of the Illinois squad was indicated by the team's early season record. It won victories over Detroit, Nebraska, Missouri and Great Lakes. Its lone defeat was at the hands of Camp Grant.

Illinois plays Stanford, winner of the National Collegiate championship last season, next Saturday and inaugurates the Big Ten schedule Jan. 9 with Michigan as its opponent.

From the great squad last season Mills has back his entire starting five and two members of the second team. Rounding out the varsity group are four cagers from last season's reserve team and four good sophomore prospects.

The starting Illinois five has Andy Phillip and Ken Menke at the forwards; Art Mathisen at center and Jack Smiley and Gene Vance at the guards. Mathisen is a senior. The other four are juniors.

Those were the players who gained 13 triumphs in 15 conference games last season. The only change Mills has made in the combination is to switch Phillip and Smiley.

Phillip played a guard last season and led the team's scorers with 159 points in conference competition. To take full advantage of his scoring ability he was moved to forward and has clicked well at the new position. Phillip, who was an all-Big Ten choice last season, has scored 47 points in five games thus far.

Smiley is regarded as the outstanding defensive cager on the squad and Mills believes the shift will work to the advantage of both players.

DI MAGGIO'S ABANDON RECONCILIATION HOPE

RENO, Nev.—(AP)—Although Joe DiMaggio, the New York Yankee baseball star, during the past few days twice has visited his wife, who is seeking a divorce in Reno, all hope for a reconciliation has been abandoned, her attorneys said today.

Since Mrs. DiMaggio, the former Dorothy Arnold, arrived in Reno several weeks ago to establish residence for a divorce, the Yankee star merely visited her to see his baby son, Joseph Paul DiMaggio III who is with his mother, the attorneys said.

Johnny Kotz Paces Badgers

Leading Scorer Holds Hopes of Wisconsin.

MADISON, Wis.—(AP)—The greatest individual scorer in Big Ten basketball history, Johnny Kotz, today held the key to the University of Wisconsin's title chances in the forthcoming conference cage race.

Kotz smashed the all-time scoring mark of Purdue's Sewell Young a season ago when he garnered 95 field goals and 52 free throws for an aggregate of 242 points. If Kotz can approach that terrific scoring pace this season the Badgers will be a definite threat for the championship Illinois grabbed last year.

Kotz, who stands six-foot-three and weighs 200 pounds, closed the 1941-42 campaign in whirlwind fashion by scoring 31 points against Iowa. In four other conference contests he scored 20 or more points.

Only one team succeeded in halting the Badger star and his accurate one-handed push shot last season. That was Purdue which limited him to three points while beating Wisconsin 40 to 34.

The current season is Kotz's third. He helped the Badgers to the national collegiate championship in his sophomore season and paced Wisconsin last season into a three-way tie for second place in the Big Ten.

Wisconsin has been impressive in its early season games. The Badgers have won four and lost one. They beat Marquette twice and Camp Grant and Oklahoma once. The setback was 61 to 59 at the hands of Notre Dame.

Wisconsin ends its "warm up" program Thursday night against Harvard and inaugurates the conference program Jan. 9 against Northwestern at Chicago.

While Kotz is the top man in the Badger cast Coach Bud Foster has four other lettermen to team with him in the starting lineup. At the forward opposite Kotz is Bib Sullivan, a six-foot-one-inch senior. Sullivan was second among the Badger scorers last season with 107 points in conference games.

Ray Patterson, who earned his monogram as a sophomore last season, is at center. Patterson, at six-foot-two, is below the average size of Big Ten pivots but possesses great speed and is a capable under-the-basket performer.

Fred Rehm, a senior, and Walt Lautenbach, a junior, are the regular guards. Rehm is a talented rebound artist and Lautenbach has shown indications of becoming an outstanding defensive performer.

While Wisconsin's starting quintet is powerful, the reserve strength is somewhat of a question mark. The only substitutes who have been impressive in early games are Ed Mills, a sophomore center who is six-foot-seven; Gil Hertz, a junior center, and Bob Krueger, a guard up from last season's Reserve squad.

The development of some additional "second line" cagers is Coach Foster's big problem.

Tech Outweighed By Texas Team

DALLAS—(AP)—Cagey old Bill Alexander admits he isn't very good at figures—especially when they concern his Georgia Tech football team now in Dallas for a Cotton Bowl engagement with Texas Friday.

"My team is lighter than Texas," he said as he watched his boys romp through a spirited session.

"But I don't know how much lighter. In fact, I don't keep up with things like weights. After all, you have certain boys and you have to play them and all that matters is what they do out on the field."

For Bill's information Texas will outweigh Georgia Tech more than nine pounds to the man.

This is for the probable starting teams, with the Longhorns boasting an average of 192 and the Engineers showing 183½.

Sinkwich Again In Grid Togs

Georgia Stock Rises With Frankie's Return.

By LEO H. PETERSEN
PASADENA, Cal.—(AP)—The clouds which had gathered over Georgia's Rose Bowl training camp vanished today and Bulldog stock began booming because Frankie Sinkwich promises to be his old self come UCLA and new year day here in the home of football's annual classic.

There was plenty of apprehension in Georgia's camp over whether Sinkwich even would be able to play until he donned his gridiron togs yesterday and showed that his twisted right ankle was going to be all right so far as his passing and running is concerned.

Although he still favors the injured leg, he looked like the Sinkwich who won almost unanimous All-American honors this season. As Coach Wally Butts and his two assistants sent the Bulldogs through their drill, Frankie was throwing and running like he did until the siege of ankle injuries hit him the day before the team left Athens, Ga.

While Georgia got the good word on Sinkwich, in the camp of the Bruins, some 30 miles away, the news on injured Bill Armstrong, UCLA's first string center, was not so cheering. The 200-pound center hurt his knee during Saturday's practice drill and while the injury was believed minor at the time it now appears that he will have to make way for Jim Daugherty, last year's regular pivot man.

Armstrong, however, will be available for part time duty and Coach Babe Horrell, following a snappy Monday drill, pronounced his team fit.

If we lose we'll have no excuses," he said. "We might surprise that dope sheet again. We know we're in for a hard game, but we might come through."

Sinkwich's return to active duty kept the odds at 2 to 1 in favor of Georgia. There was a good possibility they would go even higher inasmuch as the opening odds of 3 to 1 didn't start to drop until Frankie injured his ankle at Tournament park.

Charlie Barrett Takes Six Firsts

NEW YORK—(AP)—Right-handed Charlie Barrett of Syracuse took the major portion of pitching honors in the International league during 1942, leading in six departments, according to official averages released today.

Barrett turned in the most wins, 20; most shutouts with Nate Andrews of Syracuse, seven each; most innings, 268; most starts, 34; most complete games, 25; and longest winning streak, Barrett, Jack Kraus of Montreal and Johnny Babich of Newark, each seven games.

Tommy Byrne of Newark compiled the highest pitching percentage, winning 17 and losing four for .810 and also allowed the most bases on balls, 145, and hit the most batsmen, nine.

Veteran Ray Coombs of Jersey City fashioned the best earned run average with a mark of 1.99 for 17 wins against 11 defeats. He allowed 57 earned runs and 230 hits in 258 innings.

Max Surkong of Rochester suffered the most losses, 18; Lou Sakas, Rochester, worked oftenest, 55 games; Jack Hallett, Toronto, 55 fanned the most, 187; Harry Shuman, Toronto, made the most wild pitches, 11, and Clem Dreisewer, Rochester, had the longest losing streak, 14.

Spy Drama.
"Madam Spy," with Constance Bennett and Don Porter opens today at the Ohio to play through Wednesday. It will be followed Thursday with James Cagney's starring vehicle, "Yankee Doodle Dandy," which will run through Wednesday, Jan. 4. Joan Leslie, Walter Huston and Irene Manning are in the supporting cast of the Cagney film.

Sea Drama.

Musical Picture.
Based on the popular Broadway musical by the same name, "Panama Hattie," showing at the Ritz, revolves around the romance of Ann Sothern and Dan Dailey, Jr., and the antics of three sailors, Red Skelton, Rags Ragland and Ben Blue. Skelton plays the sailor sworn to protect Miss Sothern, a night club singer with a heart of gold, while Ragland and Blue appear as his cohorts in rounding up a bunch of spies. Cole Porter's music embellishes the film and Lena Horne, colored songbird, sings "Just One of Those Things." Laurel and Hardy in "A Haunting We Will Go," is the second attraction.

Skating Spectacle.
Dazzling skating performances highlight "Ice Capades Revue," the Park attraction. The Ice Capades troupe, organized several years ago, appears in the film including Vera Hruba, Czech skating champ, Lois Dworschak, and "Red" McCarthy, Ellen Drew and Richard Denning carry the leads as a young woman backer of a ice show and the chap who tries to aid her. "Atlantic Convoy," with John Beal and Bruce Bennett shares the bill.

Former Dust Bowl Produced Large Crop This Year

TOPEKA, Kan., (U.S.)—Farmers of western and southwestern Kansas, who refused to leave their land even during the worst days of the drought when much of the region was classed as the "dust bowl," have been completely vindicated in their faith, the department of agriculture reports in releasing statistics which show that that area produced a bumper crop of wheat last year.

Last year Kansas produced one of its largest—and probably its most profitable wheat crops in years. And about half of that wheat came from a land formerly classed as part of the "dust bowl."

Millions of shelter belt trees have been planted on the plains to help prevent a recurrence of the dust storms of 1934 and 1935, but agricultural experts said that the chief factor in returning the dust bowl to fertility was ample rainfall.

Now all the scars of the drought years have been erased and land where dust was formerly more than a foot thick is green with growing wheat.

REDS SQUEEZE 22 DIVISIONS OF TRAPPED FOE

Storm Close to Nazi Siege Base; Renewal of Tunis Battle Expected.

to 15 miles in the climactic surge yesterday against the city's immediate defenses.

While upwards of 300,000 Germans fought for their lives in the Soviet trap, United Nations headquarters in North Africa reported "vigorous" patrol action on the Tunisian front, accompanied by intensified bombing of Axis bases, as torrential rains eased.

London quarters indicated that the hour for a renewal of the Allied offensive against the Biserte-Tunis zone was approaching after weeks of comparatively minor clashes in the muddy hills.

Allied patrols were credited officially with inflicting casualties and taking prisoners in attacking an Axis force on the Medjez-El-Bab-Tebourba road, while French troops continued their advance below Pont Du Fahs, 30 miles south of Tunis.

Fighting French columns driving north from Lake Chad in the heart of Equatorial Africa also were pressing their advance in the Fezzan region, 550 miles below
Tripoli, in southwestern Libya.
The Brazzaville radio announced that the Nazi-controlled Vichy radio said French and British troops had entered French Somaliland in East Africa and Gen.
Charles De Gaulle's headquarters in London said the colony had officially aligned itself with the Fighting French.

On the eastern flank of the giant Allied "squeeze" movement, British headquarters announced that Gen. Sir Bernard L. Mont-gomery's Eighth army maintained contact with Marshal Erwin Rommel's retreating Africa corps in the Wadi El Chebir, 180 miles from the big Axis base at Tripoli, but there was still no sign of a major clash.

A British communique said RAF planes bombed Tunis, the capital of Tunisia, and its nearby harbor of La Foullete, starting fires near a railway yard.

Report Nazi Air Chief Transferred

LONDON—(AP)—A well-posted foreign source said today that Nazi Field Marshal Albert Kesselring had been shunted from his air command in the Mediterranean to a post on the Dorfront in Russia because of the Axis failure to halt the RAF in Libya.

This source, who must remain anonymous, said Kesselring's reported removal followed complaints by Marshal Rommel that lack of proper air support resulted in the rout of his forces by the British eighth army.

Kesselring was said to have been succeeded by Field Marshal Erwin Von Witzelberg, who previously had been reported sent to North Africa to direct Vichy forces there before the Allied landings.

The Germans themselves have issued no statement of any shifts on the Axis' African command.

P-38's Smash Nazi Trucks in Long Sweep

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA—(AP)—Twin-engine P-38 lightning fighters, driving a record distance into enemy territory, were disclosed today to have destroyed 21 German trucks in a motor convoy between Ez Zauia, 30 miles west of Tripoli, and Medenine.

Medenine is about 70 miles in Tunisia from the Libyan border and about 50 miles southeast of the port of Gabes.

Giraud Envoys To Confer With FDR

WASHINGTON—(AP)—President Roosevelt today arranged to confer with members of a mission representing Gen. Henri Honore Giraud, the new high commissioner for French North Africa.

Invited to the White House were Gen. M. E. Bogaert and J. L. Du-Breuil, Giraud's representatives who arrived in this country a few days ago.

White House Press Secretary
Stephen T. Early said the mission members also would confer while in Washington with Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, and Admiral William D. Leahy,
Mr. Roosevelt's chief of staff.

Giraud's representatives were expected to report to Mr. Roosevelt on Giraud's plans for the future.

Subs, Planes Hit Axis Supply Ships, Ports

LONDON—(AP)—British submarines have blasted four ships attempting to reinforce the Germans in North Africa, and the Allied air attack has grown so heavy that observers said today that every Axis-held port in Tunisia was damaged heavily.

The submarines struck along the Axis Tunisia-Sicily-Italy supply line and sank two ships, forced another to beach itself and probably sank a fourth, according to a British admiralty announcement.

German positions in Tunisia were under two-way attack from the air. Bombers and fighters attached to the British Eighth army routed far from their bases to strike at German bases in Tunisia.
Then Allied planes based on Tunisian airfields took up the attack in what almost amounted to a round-the-clock air offensive.

'GHOST CITY' NOW

PAPEETE, Tahiti—(AP)—Punauia, the colony of American villas where many wealthy or adventurous visitors sought a touch of South Sea life, has become a virtual ghost town. A gradual drift back to the continent became a rush in the threatening days just before Pearl Harbor. Neglected, the frame houses are rapidly deteriorating in the moist tropical climate.

Advance 75 Miles as Yanks Deepen Wedge in Jap Position at Buna.

Japanese troops at Rathedaung suggested that the British might be in considerable force.

On the New Guinea front, Gen.
Douglas MacArthur's headquarters announced that Allied troops had deepened their wedge into Japanese lines in the Buna zone, with American and Australian jungle fighters beating off a desperate new enemy attempt to smash out of its trap.

After crushing the Japanese counterattack, Allied troops lunged farther into the enemy's intricate system of fortifications along the dwindling beach corridor.

Gen. MacArthur said Japanese warcraft—probably submarines—shell-d Allied lines at Buna village for five hours yesterday, starting at midnight, but caused no damage.

Allied airmen flying heavy Liberator bombers were credited with scoring three direct 500-pound hits on a big Japanese cruiser off Rabaul, New Britain, leaving the warships in flames and, probably destroyed.

Other Allied fliers bombed the Gasmata airbase in New Britain and carried out widespread attacks from Timor to Dutch New Guinea.

Report Jap Thrust In Hupeh Parried

CHUNGKING—(AP)—A new Japanese offensive in the eastern China lowlands in Shantung and Hupeh provinces has been partially thwarted, a Chinese communique said today.

Six thousand Japanese infantrymen invaded southwestern Shantung from several directions Dec.
20, it was reported, attempting to take the town of Shansien, but Chinese defenders repelled them, killing 700.

Yank Planes Spread Havoc Over Burma

WITH U. S. AIR FORCES IN CHINA, Dec. 27—(Delayed)—(AP)
—Brig. Gen. Claire L. Chennault's fighters and bombers destroyed three enemy planes, probably marked off two others and created havoc among Japanese ground forces in a series of sweeps against enemy bases in Burma and western Yunnan province today.

For the fourth time in eight days a flight of American bombers escorted by fighters went after the huge Japanese airbase at Lashio in Burma and added appreciably to the destruction already done.

Another American force delivered two devastating low-level attacks on Japanese troops and a supply concentration at Mengmao on the Burma road, 30 miles across the Salween river in western Yunnan province.

Hawaii To Get Back Some Civilian Rule

WASHINGTON—(INS)—Secretary of Navy Frank Knox reported today that a "satisfactory formula" had been worked out for returning some civilian control to the government of Hawaii, which has been under strict military law since Pearl Harbor.

Knox said that he had attended a conference at the office of Secretary of War Stimson yesterday at which a substantial agreement had been reached between the war department, the navy and the justice department.

TWO PLACED IN CASUALTY LIST

Seaman Elmo Hyatt Perishes,
Lieut. Clark M. Garber
Missing in Action.

piloting in a raid stalled and hurtled toward the earth as the bomb load shifted and broke through the side of the plane. He was able to bring the big ship out of the dive and land safely.

Lieut. Garber became the father of a daughter in November, but it is believed he never received word of the birth. Last letter received from him was written Nov.
16, the day before he is reported to have lost his life.

"We still have hope that he's alive, for men reported missing sometimes show up later," his father, Clark M. Garber, sr., said today.

The filer's wife, a former Lucas school teacher, and their daughter are making their home with Mr.
and Mrs. Garber, sr., in Butler.

Hyatt, the Mansfield seaman who was lost in action, jumped overboard with other members of the crew of the U. S. S. Topa Topa after it was bombed and started to sink, the navy message said.

As he struggled in the sea, he took off his life belt to assist two companions nearby, his wife was informed. It was for this act that he was cited posthumously for bravery.

Hyatt enlisted in the navy last May after working for two years at the Mansfield Westinghouse plant. He came to the city from Kentucky. His father, Robert Hyatt, lives at Flemingsburg, Ky.
Mrs. Hyatt refused to give up hope that her husband still lived until she received the official report of his death from the navy department.

"I wish he could have seen his navy and marine medal for bravery," she commented today.

OFFERS PLAN TO SALVAGE SHIPS

LOS ANGELES—(AP)—Ships that go to the bottom through enemy torpedo action would be salvaged intact if the invention of Lieut. Harry E. Riesberg works. A former bureau of navigation officer, he has applied for a patent on an immense pair of tongs which would be lowered from a floating dry dock and engage sunken vessels.

Riesberg, who has had experience in salvage work, believes the hulls could be hoisted to the surface at the rate of 2,500 feet in 12 hours.

WOOSTER MAN NAMED

WOOSTER—(AP)—The board of commissioners announced today that Charles J. Vaughn of Wooster has been selected to succeed Charles R. Mone, of Sterling, as welfare director of Wayne county.

NOT HIS IDEA

AYDEN, N. C.—(AP)—Night police chief Walter Hamilton had a new one for the records when he logged his night report: "Helped two men load 11 cases of liquor, stolen from the ABC store." Hamilton said the men surprised him on his beat, disarmed him, and then forced him at the point of a gun to help them load the stolen liquor.

JAIL FUGITIVE ELUDES CAPTURE

Wymer Still at Large as Sheriff Gets More 'Tips'; Damaged Cell Locked.

Shuster, 18-year-old friend of the fugitive, who told officers he transported him to Sparta, was released from jail where he had been held for investigation after Prosecutor John C. O'Donnell questioned him yesterday afternoon. O'Donnell said evidence verified the youth's statement that while he did transport him, he did not know that he had escaped from jail or that he was aiding a criminal to escape.

Doors of the cell block in which the top window bars were snapped off remained locked today, the sheriff said. He seeks to have heavy re-enforcing steel placed at the top of all the jail windows and heavy screen placed over the upper parts of the windows, like that which covers the lower halves.

Other prisoners in the cell block at the time of the escape apparently made no move to join in the break, the sheriff said. Most of them would have been too large to crawl through the small hole, anyway, he explained.

Arrest of 'Small Fry' Draws Criticism as Jurist Takes Up Slot Machine Case.

gaged in similar practices is the principal reason for these extended remarks," Judge Kalbfleisch explained, in setting forth the need for a dictated opinion—the only one he has prepared in advance during his six years on the municipal bench.

The judge scored fraternal orders which operate gambling games and devices under the protection of their charters and warned that their original aims would be destroyed by continuing the practice.

He also voiced the belief that the city did not have and would never have a "crooked" police force or judiciary.

Recently chartered bingo clubs drew the fire of the judge who noted that Saprano maintained a club in connection with his store.

"I see little, if any, distinction between the defendant and his club and some other organizations," the opinion said, "fraternal or otherwise, even though their precepts might be higher-sounding or are dedicated to a more worthwhile purpose.

"I believe that any organization that is sustained by vicious gambling devices will lose its character and by continued practice deteriorate into the hands of men who have no interest in the fine intentions and wholesome purposes of the organization.

"Saprano sought to operate these machines through a charter or club organization, a disguise frequently employed in days of prohibition in order to make more difficult the apprehension of the bootlegger. It would appear that some persons now seek to employ this same device to conduct their operations outside the law and believe that such a club charter entitles them to privileges they do not have as individuals.

"This belief is erroneous as the club charter does not entitle the club, whether it be a legitimate club or a mere fiction—to engage in gambling or conduct gambling enterprises.

"In a community the size of Mansfield it is hard to conceive of a gambling ring or of one or two individuals setting themselves up as being able to protect gamblers or gambling places. Any person or group of persons harboring a desire to be a 'gambling boss' are fools because such a set-up will require two things they can never get in Mansfield—a crooked police department and a crooked judge.

"If you are a member of some fraternal organizations in this city, you cannot help but know that for years they have operated similar devices without hindrance—that bingo and like games were conducted without molestation.

"That the numbers game was played and continues to be played —that bets on horses are taken—to contribute something to the welfare of society. For the best interests of society all laws on our statute books should be enforced or repealed. If gambling is to be condoned or to be regulated in any manner it should be done through the laws by the people's representatives and not by local tinhorn gamblers."

In suspending a 30-day county jail sentence and demanding that Saprano post bond of $500 to insure good behavior for one year Judge Kalbfleisch said "this sentence is based upon my belief that this arrest is part of an honest effort by police to destroy all vicious gambling and that I shall not again be called upon to bring out a five-inch cannon with which to shoot a sparrow."

distributing dwindling stocks to all stores, even more drastic action is planned.

A number of other "devices" for achieving wide distribution were understood to be already drawn up and ready to go into operation if necessary.

The order is designed to prevent the larger stores from stocking up on scarce commodities, at the expense of smaller firms without the necessary cash or storage space to lay in large amounts of goods. It will also assure new stores, especially those growing up in defense centers, of a chance to obtain goods to sell, which might otherwise have gone to the older customers of wholesalers and manufacturers.

"The order will protect more than 1,000,000 smaller stores by improving their opportunity to obtain merchandise which otherwise might go to the larger merchants," the WPB said.

The order becomes effective March 1 for merchants whose fiscal year for filing federal income taxes begins Dec. 1; on April 1 for those whose tax year begins
Jan. 1, and May 1 for those beginning Feb. 1.

HORSE 'ESCAPES' PRISON

FOLSOM PRISON, Cal.—(AP)— Officials of Folsom prison for the

14 LOCOMOTIVES LOST IN BLAZE

Army, Navy, FBI Probe Ruins
Of Detroit Roundhouse
After $2,000,000 Fire.

(By International News Service)

DETROIT — Army and navy intelligence officers joined with FBI agents today in probing the ruins of a west side New York Central railroad roundhouse which was destroyed by a four alarm fire which also put 14 locomotives out of commission and did overall damage estimated at $2,000,000.

Despite the seriousness of the fire which raged for two hours before Detroit firemen brought it under control, there was no railroad transportation tie-up insofar as delivery of war products was concerned, railroad officials said.

Jesse V. McKee, company vice president, said that trains were running "as usual." Equipment was rushed to Detroit from Jackson, Mich., and Toledo, to maintain schedules.

None of the investigators were willing to immediately advance any possible cause of the fire.

Adding to the confusion at the scene of the blaze were the earle sounds of steam whistles on the engines which were set off by the intense heat. The whistles could be heard for miles.

McKee said that the prompt and efficient work of Detroit firemen saved 45 other engines nearby from destruction. The 14 engines, valued at $200,000 each, were damaged so badly they will have to be torn down and rebuilt, McKee said.

It Was a Joke But Footballer Gets His Date

HOLLYWOOD—(AP)—A few days ago, Betty Grable received the following telegram:

"Dear Betty: I am a tackle on the University of Georgia football team which is going to play in the Rose Bowl on New Year Day. I have also been voted the handsomest man on the campus. I would like to have a date with you anytime between Dec. 23 and Jan.
23. If this is all right, wire me collect in care of the E.A.E. house at the university." The wire was signed: "Dick Richardson."

Betty asked one of the 20th Century Fox publicity men to check and see if there really was a Dick Richardson on the team.
There was. But in the process of checking with Atlanta the press-man found that Dick's buddies in college had sent the wire as a gag.
knowing that Richardson thought Betty was plenty all right.

The gag backfired, however, when Dick comes to Hollywood, he will not only meet Betty, but will have lunch with her at the studio and watch her work. And Betty, like any normal gal, is wondering if that part about being "the handsomest man on the campus" is true.

WATCH OUT FOR FAKE 'G-MAN' TRYING TO GET GAS OR MONEY

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON — That gabby "G-man" you met in the barber shop may be an impostor who is trying to (1) get some extra gasoline, (2) borrow some money or cash a bad check, (3) thrill his girl friend, (4) find out war secrets for the enemy, or (5) fool his wife so he can go out nights.
Federal Bureau of Investigation officials said today numerous fake G-men are springing up all over the country, and reminded the public that Director J. Edgar Hoover "instructs all agents to exhibit their credentials."
Such credentials include an identification card with the agent's picture and the signature of Hoover and Attorney General Biddle.
The most popular fraud of the moment is the "G-man" who wants extra gasoline, they said, and cited a few cases.
A dry cleaner told his board that he needed extra gasoline to carry on his "FBI investigations on the side." He isn't even dry-cleaning any more.
Then there was the man who wooed women with his G-man talk and showed scars "suffered in gunfights" with desperadoes. He married in Iowa, again in Wisconsin and was about to do likewise in Illinois when his fiancée started talking to friends. G-men met her bigamist boy friend at a night club where he resisted arrest—and really received some scars in action with the FBI.

SWITCH ENGINE ERA ABOUT OVER

Diesel Motors, Much Smaller, Replacing Locomotives in Rail Yards.
COLUMBUS, O., (U.S.) — The steam switching engine, the great puffing behemoth which has inspired many a boy to become its master at the throttle, is on its way out, in the opinion of B. B. Williams, president of the Cooper

Bessemer Corporation, diesel engine manufacturer.
Williams believes that the "lovable giant's" place is rapidly being taken by an unromantic midge not much larger than the steam locomotive's tender. The midge, run by diesel power, is being turned out in large numbers to meet the increasing demands of American railroads and industry which have a tremendous volume of war materials to handle.
The chief reason for the friend-demise is its failure to develop enough power from a dead stop. Williams pointed out. Once under way, it is powerful enough, but in getting up the necessary speed much effectiveness is lost, the manufacturer declared.

"One diesel locomotive builder recently hitched a big steam switch engine to a train of 50 cars, which had been left on a siding long enough for the bearings to become stiff," he said. "The big steam locomotive groaned and puffed until its wheels skidded on the tracks, but it could not pull the train. Then a tiny diesel driven locomotive was applied. With the first pull of the throttle it walked away with its load."

The Ohio manufacturer said that in a head-on contest, a diesel switch engine "could back up a steam locomotive three times as powerful and with a full head of steam."

HUNTERS SEE ELK PLAY DEAD

PUEBLO, Colo. — (U.S.) — Deputy Game Warden Floyd Johnson had a report from two big game hunters who shot an elk.
"They saw him fall and leisurely walked up to the carcass. Then they pulled off their coats and prepared to dress the animal. Just then the elk jumped up and ran away and the hunters never caught sight of it again."

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, TUESDAY, DECEMBER 29, 1942.

Every year, every month, in fact, every day that the war is shortened, means fewer lives lost, less regimentation and red tape, less diversion of valuable resources from civilian to war purposes, less disruption to our economic structure, and less difficult rehabilitation in the post-war period.—Robert R. Nathan.

Behavior In Advance of Rationing

WILLINGNESS of Americans to exemplify the true spirit of democracy by acting voluntarily instead of under compulsion will be put to test during the few weeks preceding the expanded food-rationing program announced to take effect sometime in February.

As was made clear by Secretary of Agriculture Wickard and Elmer Davis, chairman of the Office of War Information, no actual food shortage is in prospect in the United States, despite large quantities of food being sent abroad.

There will be, however, a limited supply of some items—notably canned goods and meat—for which it will be necessary to provide equitable distribution, and this is the purpose of the "point-system" rationing, which is already in satisfactory operation in England.

Experience with sugar and coffee shortages, before rationing of these items was started, proved that at least a small percentage of persons could not resist the temptation to over-buy and hoard scarce articles and this was recognized by Mr. Davis when he said that while advance announcement of the plan would give some chiselers and hoarders a chance to stock up, if so inclined, he was confident that "an overwhelming majority of the American people are patriotic enough, and sensible enough, not to try to do that."

People who may have thoughtlessly joined in the panic rush for sugar and coffee while stocks were being depleted by hoarders may be able to do some clearer thinking by now and may refrain from over-buying commodities announced for later rationing.

All who think of buying in excess of reasonable present needs will do well to ponder Secretary Wickard's remark: "If you want to help the Axis one of the best ways is to hoard food."

Mansfield grocers report that a large majority of customers are buying normally, but that a few persons are attempting to purchase unusually large quantities of canned goods—which is as might be expected.

The World's Most Terrible Winter

TO MAKE Americans more aware of their own blessings and to keep flowing the wellsprings of sympathy and understanding, here is an excerpt from an editorial in the New York World.

This winter, says the writer, is going to be the most terrible that western man has known in modern times. Not so terrible for America, but terrible for the Old World from which this nation sprang. Between the Atlantic ocean and the Caspian sea, where western culture began, the Nazis will reach the summit of their crime-wave.

"Millions will die this winter because of this 'New Order' that Hitler invented. Millions more will be warped and stunted. Millions of babies who might have come into the world will not be born. The Nazis are killing the best of Europe by incompetence, indifference and blackhearted murder. They have ruined the existing economic system and lack the ability to set up in its place anything that will work. They are deliberately killing whole populations, including in every country the wise, the generous and the brave, whom they recognize as their natural enemies."

This also is what the Japanese would do in other continents if they could. But God willing, "they shall not pass."

Dr. Woltmann, Physician and Friend

THOSE who have come to Mansfield in more recent years may not have had opportunity to enjoy acquaintanceship with Dr. Harro Woltmann, whose death occurred Sunday night, but to those who knew him, as physician, consultant or friend, the passing of Dr. Woltmann brings a feeling of genuine sorrow, coupled with recognition that he was a person in whom the attributes of true manhood were exceptionally present.

Through years of precarious health, Dr. Woltmann continued to be of service in his profession, and an inspiration to all who knew him. It was typical of him that his genial personality and jovial disposition was never disturbed by his physical weakness.

His earnest effort in behalf of a "chest clinic," for disclosure of lung defects in school children, was only one of his contributions to enliven community interest in early discovery and treatment of pulmonary ailments, and a recital of his personal concern and help in individual cases would be almost endless, although it be only from those he helped that this information would be available, as never a word of it came from Dr. Woltmann himself.

It is such men as Dr. Woltmann, who think first of what they can do for others, and who fill their lives with kindly acts, who better the communities in which they live and inspire faith in the professions they represent or the activities in which they are engaged.

Cyprus Becomes Strategic Island

CYPRUS is being eyed by both British and Nazis as a possible jumping-off place for an attack in the Eastern Mediterranean. In former days the resources of the island would have provided a sufficient reason for seizing it. Then it produced so much copper that the metal took its name from the island, being "Aes Cyprium" or "Cyprus metal," and finally simply "copper." But the copper mines have not been worked for a long time, and today's value of the island consists chiefly in its location.

This is of considerable strategic importance. Lying only 44 miles from Asia Minor to the north, and 69 from Syria to the west, it is practically next door to both in these days of airplanes. For some reason, when the Nazis overwhelmed Crete, they did not touch Cyprus, and Cyprus remains what it has been since the first World war, British territory.

A Nazi raid on Cyprus might draw some of Rommel's enemies away from him, or put Turkey in a friendlier mood to Germany. Any day, therefore, the island may be in the headlines.

Reports from persons attempting to heat their homes with 50 per cent of the customary amount of fuel oil is that it's much easier to maintain a stiff upper lip.

How You Can Help Avoid Inflation

(This is the last of four articles prepared by the Office of War Information to explain in simple terms the government program for economic stabilization.)

ECONOMIC stabilization—the process of holding wages and prices steady—has been put into action through President Roosevelt's seven-point program.

Prices and pay sales have been stabilized at the Sept. 15 levels. Rationing is put into effect when we run short of something. The tax law is the highest in our history. Installment buying has been cut down and private debts are being paid off.

The law has been made and the machinery is at work. The program to halt inflation is a fair one, and can be made to work, if—

There is a big IF.

If every person will do his or her part.

Neither laws nor government agencies can make this program work successfully. Only the understanding and full co-operation of all the people can insure success.

Leads are possible in this, as in any broad program. These leads could be widened until there is no chance for economic stabilization to work.

One of these leads is likely to occur next year. As money becomes more plentiful and stocks of goods dwindle, people are likely to start bidding against each other.

Let's look at what is coming. Billions of dollars worth of equipment will be produced this year for our armed forces and our Allies. It will go to the people in the form of wages, salaries, payment for materials, services, etc.

The total amount that will be paid for goods and services, both in war and civilian production will total 125 billion.

People will have that money to pay taxes, to save and to spend.

But we will not produce 125 billion dollars worth of lamps, automobiles, rugs, refrigerators.

Daily Bible Thought

At the same time came the disciples unto Jesus, saying, Who is the greatest in the kingdom of heaven?—Matt. 18:1.

clothes, clocks and all the other things we would normally be buying. Many manufacturers who would normally be producing them are making war equipment instead.

In short, only a small part of that 125 billion dollars can be spent for normal things.

Federal and state taxes will take about 17 billion, cutting the total to 108 billion.

War bonds and other savings will probably cut it down 25 billion more. BUT, that still leaves 83 billion.

Can we spend that money without causing price inflation? Only 70 billion dollars worth of civilian goods will be produced.

Manufacturing of many non-war items ceased before last summer. Others are being stopped daily. It won't be long before supplies in storage are gone. Then there will be nothing to buy.

If people insist on spending, they will have to bid against each other for the limited supply of things available. It will be a case of many persons wanting to buy a few things. This will cause great pressure on ceiling prices. If it is continued, the ceilings may bulge.

Timely Editorial

Ration Red Tape, Too!

Harassed by the necessity of making out reports, keeping track of price ceilings and handling ration coupons, a grocer in Little Rock, Ark. has proposed a weekly "Red Tape Day."

On this day, stores would close so that owners and their employees might catch up on their book work.

So far as time required to conform with all current governmental regulations is concerned, the idea is not bad. It would take an ordinary person a half day to read the 22 columns of fine print which constitute the rules for coffee rationing—and then he wouldn't understand it.

More practical, however, would be an anti-red-tap day, week or month in Washington. A lot of the regulations are necessary, especially in time of war. But the bureaucrats seem to have the habit of going at their work the hard way—making every procedure unnecessarily complicated.

Pointed Paragraphs

A correct guess passes for wisdom even though it is only a guess.

Don't waste your time telling a small boy how very good you were at his age.

Words of the Wise

He that mischief hatcheth mischief catcheth.—William Camden.

If the prices do not go up, a "black market" will probably develop.

A "black market" is an illegal market in which unscrupulous persons sell the limited supply of things people want at greatly increased prices. Take gasoline for example. These persons, disregarding the laws and caring little for the effect of their actions might get an illegal supply of gasoline and then sell it illegally at high prices.

SUCH MARKETS are obviously unfair. A few profit greatly at the expense of everyone else. Laws and programs are ignored and circumvented. Trouble and unrest spread. Soon the whole program of fair treatment for all is out of order. And war production will suffer as more and more workers cannot get proper food, clothing and shelter.

With the stabilization program full of leaks, the cost of living will start to rise and everyone will suffer.

How can we prevent it? It is up to all the people to see that this does not happen. There is only one way to do it. Every person must slacken his or her spending as much as is humanly possible. Each person must save, salvage and do without.

When shortages appear, the individual should not try to "beat the ration."

He should not try to stock up by offering higher prices or by hoarding.

There can be only one road ahead of us. As long as the war lasts, more and more shortages will develop. Each person must save as much as possible.

It is to his or her advantage to do so.

Saving will mean a steady living cost instead of a rising living cost. It will mean a nice nest egg for the individual after the war is over.

Interpreting the War News

Defense of India Now Adequate, Fear of Japanese Invasion Past

—By DE WITT MACKENZIE

NEW DELHI—Looking back over nine months to the black days when the sprawling sub-continent of India was unprepared to defend itself against a Japanese invasion, it's good to be able to report with certainty that this great empire's security is no longer a cause of anxiety.

Of course the defense of India is still a matter of concern, just as is the defense of England, or our own United States for that matter. There always must be an element of danger so long as the Mikado's barbarians are sitting just across the Bay of Bengal in Burma.

However, we can say that Hindustan today is so well set for military action that it feels capable of dealing with any emergency. The time of sleepless nights has passed. I arrived in the Indian capital last night and the first thing I did was to check on the military situation to make sure it looked as good as close range as it has from a distance. It seems even better here where we are up against actualities.

India has a big army of at least a million under arms here at home, apart from the hundreds of thousands of men who are fighting overseas. The training of new troops is proceeding well. Other defensive projects are said to be in an equally satisfactory condition.

SO FAR as concerns the possibility of a Japanese invasion, the readers of this column will recall that from the outset of the Nipponese conquests in Indonesia and Burma I said that an attempt to conquer India proper was remote despite this country's military and political weaknesses. This estimate was based on the undoubted fact that an invasion would not be strategically sound except from the standpoint of some emergency such as might develop, for example, in the Russo-German theater.

The Japs already had overrun all and maybe more than they could hope to digest. So why ask for trouble by trying to swallow giant India. The Nipponese military leaders will steal all they can get away with, but the intimations have been that they are trying not to let their eyes get bigger than their stomachs.

Still there always was the bare possibility that Hitler might persuade his allies to strike at India in order to help his Caucasus drive or that some other circumstances might impel them to cross the Bay of Bengal. Therefore, it is a matter of immense satisfaction to see these contingencies recede into the dim shadows.

There undoubtedly is another sort of invasion which the Japanese are attempting. That is the conquest of propaganda. Every effort is being made to create disaffection among the people of India, but the average native of this country has no delusions about his fate at the hands of the Japs if they ever get a hold here. The morale of the army is said to be air-tight.

India's presently vastly improved position is due not only to her own growing strength, but to the weakening of Japanese resources. Thanks for this must go to the operations of United States forces and their Allies in the Pacific.

Japan's heavy losses in aircraft, warships and cargo boats have greatly weakened her striking power and limited the range of her activities. In order to invade

India on a big scale, the Japs must have control of the Bay of Bengal—please get out those maps I talk so much about—both in the air and on the water.

They must have transport ships with which to move their troops, equipment and supplies.

Those requisites would appear to be beyond their reach at this time. Certainly the Anglo-American air forces have superiority in the air defensively although they lack absolute control, as witness the raids on Calcutta last week.

THERE is still another point in India's favor which I mentioned last week in a dispatch from Cairo. Every day the Allies come nearer to driving the Axis into the sea from northern Africa, so much nearer do we come to the time when the Mediterranean will be opened again for shipping. This will mean that India no longer will have to depend on the long haul from Britain and the United States around South Africa for her war supplies. That will give the United Nations a rather mighty boost toward victory.

Just one word of warning is called for in making this optimistic report. I don't want to give the impression that Japan is beaten or that she won't fight like the devil she is. We have seen the Japs battling to the death in many theaters. Often when they don't die by the hand of the enemy, they commit suicide.

We would be foolish not to anticipate hard and bloody work before we crush them.

Hitler's Frustration Credited to Russians

—By LOUIS F. KEEMLE

CONTINUED German reverses on a long Russian front of more than 1,000 miles make it increasingly apparent that Hitler's striking power in Europe is neutralized for the winter.

It is becoming less and less likely that he will be able to undertake any such venture as an attack on the Middle East through Turkey or on Gibraltar through Spain. A desperate attempt to invade England is a possibility so remote that it can be dismissed from consideration.

Hitler's frustration has been achieved by Russia. His 1942 objectives have not been attained and now his military position is precarious. Had he achieved his aim to establish a line from Voronezh southwestward past Stalingrad, the position might have been reversed and Hitler would have been free to divert considerable force to southern Europe, where he now is menaced.

AS IT IS, Hitler is in no position to fight a winning war on two fronts. It does not even seem probable that he can resume his offensive in Russia, but must fall back at least to the Donets Basin defenses and continue to pour in men and material to prevent a rout.

Russian territorial gains so far in this offensive have not been large. The important thing is the terrific drain on Hitler's resources. He has to keep pouring men and metal into a campaign which is getting him nowhere and is slowly bleeding him white.

His forces will be pocketed on the coastal strip where Allied power can be concentrated against them. The Axis effort will be devoted to holding on as long as possible to delay the inevitable Allied attempt to invade the underside of Europe.

It is still possible that he may still make a stand in northeastern Tunisia, especially if Marshal Erwin Rommel is able to effect a junction with Gen. Walthar Nehring there. There is little doubt that Rommel will try to do so and military expediency calls for him to do it as soon as possible.

Rommel therefore is likely to fight only a rear guard action in the gorges east of Tripoli, or at Tripoli itself, to cover the retreat of his broken army across the Tunisian frontier. The Axis hold on North Africa then will be tenuous.

DINA CASHMAN + + +

CHAPTER XXI

"You know my wife," Rogers said, indicating Dina with a movement of his head. "Geraldine, you remember Mr. and Mrs. Havens?"

Dina stood disheveled and young and lovely against the sunset, her tawny hair an aureole about her forehead, the pale green leaves and white spheres of a snowball bush behind her.

"Your wife? Oh, excuse me; I didn't see you," Aline said frigidly, then with reproach to Rogers: "And you never told me!"

"You never told me your plans with Mr. Havens here until about a fortnight before you hopped off to Reno with him. That's a nice little city, by the way, Geraldine and I took a leaf out of your book and went there, too. Perhaps the same obliging clergyman married you, Kirkham?" Rogers said, all in an unruffled, leisurely tone. "But come; let's go in. It's going to be cold out here in about a minute. Geraldine, what about scaring up something to eat and drink?"

"I'll see Hinz," Dina nodded and smiled as she escaped. She raced to the pantry, raced upstairs. Her new flowery dress; a wet comb dashed through her hair; changed slippers.

"You're all right," Mrs. Bucket said, helping her. "You look all right."

Dina descended, slackening her pace. She must be composed, not breathless, when she entered the library.

Hinz was stooping to light the fire. A tray with glasses and bottles was on the table. Aline and Andrew and Rogers were still standing; all three turned as Dina came in.

She looked young and sweet in the flowery ruffles; the freshly combed damp hair had fallen into waves and curved about her face. She was still a little pale, and her eyes shone darkly sapphire in faint rings of shadow.

"Ah, Hinz has taken care of you, I see. And Chong is making us some canapés," she said composedly. She did not look at Rogers, but she felt his satisfaction with her behavior like a tangible wave that touched her.

"What are you drinking, Mrs. Holland?" Andrew Havens asked with his agreeable smile. He was mixing a highball for himself; Dina smiled in return.

"Nothing, thank you, Rogers tries to make me drink milk, but not at this time of the day," she said. And then as the three others settled themselves by the fireside she pushed a leather hassock to the side of Rogers' chair and sat down, her shoulder touching his knee.

She had never taken this position before; she had not planned it; but something in Aline's hostility, her intolerance, had nerved her, and she knew she was right when Rogers changed his glass to the other hand and allowed his fingers to touch her shoulder in return.

"You shouldn't have bothered about food, Mrs. Holland," Aline said with a polite inclination of her head.

"Oh, it was no trouble," Dina assured her easily. "Chong loves to have someone to fuss over, and we don't keep him half busy enough!"

"It seems to be my fate to want to paint you," Andrew Havens said. Dina widened her eyes and, remembering her instructions upon an earlier occasion, turned to smile mysteriously at Rogers. But this time her face was much nearer his than it ever had been before, and the expression of grateful appreciation she saw there somewhat upset her.

He was suffering in the other woman's company as he always must. His smile was strained and unnatural, his upper lip beaded with fine perspiration.

Aline knew it too. No snake charmer ever exerted a more confident sway over her victims than that Aline was exerting now, relaxed and graceful in her big chair.

"Why didn't you tell us that night, Rogers, that you and Miss—I've forgotten the previous name, Mrs. Holland; forgive me—were planning this?"

"Oh, I don't know! We just got into the car one day, followed your example, and went up to Reno and had it all over without any fuss." He tried to say it carelessly, but he did not wholly succeed.

"So the paper says. Well, you'll have fuss enough now."

"Maybe we'll run away from it, Hey Geraldine?"

"Yes, we will," Dina said thoughtfully, not moving her gaze from the fire.

"Mrs. Caroline Holland was telling me all about you," Aline said suddenly, turning the battery of her silken, smiling manner toward the younger woman. "You were a friend of Vere Holland's, weren't you? Quite a good friend."

Dina brought her shadowed blue eyes from the fire to Aline's face. There was a moment of complete silence in the room. Andrew Havens looked from one to the other in mild, amused bewilderment.

"Yes, I knew Vere," Dina said. "Very well, didn't you?" Aline pursued.

"Who told you anything about Geraldine and Vere Holland?" Rogers demanded. Dina, whose face had slowly crimsoned, sank back in her chair, a great wave of relief engulfing her.

"There was something to tell?" Aline countered.

"Apparently," Rogers said. "I don't know what Caroline's been talking about," he went on, "but I'm having Callaghan go down and find out what she's been saying," he drawled. "After all, Aline, libel's libel, and Geraldine's my wife. I don't know what you told Betsey Berry, but the sooner that sort of thing gets scooped the better. Just what was your source of information, anyway?"

Aline's ivory face lost a shade of color. "Why, I don't know anything at all," she said, proudly indifferent. But there was a suggestion of stammering in her usually assured speech.

"I have nothing to do with it! Caroline told me that Vere had known Miss—known your wife, that was all. I had said that she was here at a dinner party and that I was wondering about her."

"Well, if that's all you quote to Betsey, that's all right then," Rogers said with an air of being mollified; "but from something she said—however, she evidently didn't get it from you! I'll have to find out where she did get it."

"I said nothing to Betsey Berry that Caroline didn't say to me," Aline said quickly.

"And nothing about Geraldine?"

"Nothing Caroline didn't say," she was uneasy now, on the defensive; there were two red spots in her cheeks.

"Well, Callaghan will run the whole thing down," Rogers said comfortably.

"Don't go consulting Frank Callaghan; don't be so silly!" Aline said slightly. "After all, I think all that I said was that Miss Cashman and Vere had been friends, and I'm sure that's true. Tell me what do you two honeymooners do here all day long?" she added in a social tone of one keeping a conversation going but obviously anxious to get on firmer ground.

"We never seem to have any time to spare, do we, Geraldine?" Rogers said, stuffing his pipe.

"We play cribbage," Dina contributed. "And I beat him," she added with a smile for Rogers.

"We'll have to begin to play cribbage," Andrew said unexpectedly. He had taken no part and apparently no interest in the little exchange of hostilities, merely glancing once or twice at his wife with a whimsical expression of surprise on his humorous, long-featured face. "The long winter evenings down at the farm have been boring my wife to death," he continued. "As a matter of fact, we've been at a hotel in town for the last couple of weeks."

"Bored, were you, Aline?" Rogers asked mildly over his pipe.

"Not bored at all," she answered lazily, looking at the fire between half-shut lids but first having given her husband a level, expressionless glance. "It's part of Andy's profession to meet people, to have them know he's here. And since quite a good deal was going on—the Richie party and the Stanfield wedding—we moved in for a fortnight."

"As a matter of fact, I like the country best in the winter," Rogers observed. "Geraldine does too."

"I love it here," Dina said simply.

"You're evidently quite an ideal couple," Aline said with a little laugh. "You've not heard from Caroline about your marriage?" she asked Rogers in an undertone.

"I only wrote her a day or two ago, and if, as you say, they've been in Honolulu—Anyway, I've not heard!"

Dina lost the rest of the conversation, for Andrew had gotten to his feet and stepped to a lamp. He beckoned to her.

"Come over here and see what you think of this," he said.

Dina joined him, looking down at the little sketch he had drawn on a small square of white paper.

"Why, it's lovely!" she exclaimed. "It's me—I—me—I," she added, laughing and looking at Rogers.

And she carried to him the sketch of a girl in a flowery dress, a girl seated on a hassock with an old-fashioned fireplace for a background. Displaying it to Rogers, Dina seated herself on the arm of his chair and leaned against him familiarly.

"Yes, yes, it's really like you," he approved. "Why don't you paint her, Andrew?" he asked.

"I'd like to have her painted."

"You were going to have Anne painted. Was Anne ever painted?" Aline put in. Rogers showed no sign of annoyance.

"No; we talked of it. But of course we didn't have Andrew in the family then. How'd you like to do it? and when could you do it?" he asked the painter.

"But look here, I wasn't drumming up trade!" Andrew protested, with his hard, lean, sunburned face flushing deeper.

"I know you weren't. But we might as well get Geraldine at nineteen; she'll never be any younger."

"I suppose you've been painted lots of times?" Dina said somewhat timidly to Aline. Aline glanced at her thoughtfully, did not answer.

"Of course I've done her," Andrew said. "She's a wonderful subject too, because she always looks the same. Whether it's ten o'clock in the morning or late at night, Aline's the same porcelain empress."

"I can see that," Rogers mused, half-shut eyes on Aline. "Ah, modern cosmetics—modern cosmetics."

"But Dina here—" Andrew began. He stopped, changed to an apologetic tone. "I call you Dina," he explained, "because it isn't in the nature of things to call a girl who looks about twelve anything as formal as 'Mrs. Holland'."

"Please do!" Dina, back on her hassock, said eagerly.

"I was going to say that you change all the time," Andrew resumed. "You were quite different that first night; you seemed older, somehow; didn't she, Aline? When we got here today you were one girl and now you're quite another."

"Infinite variety," Rogers said idly. "Well, how would you like to paint her? In that thing?"

"In that dress and that dark blue chair. Sit there, will you?" Andrew asked. Dina rose, shook her flowery skirt, and sat down in the blue brocade chair. Its back rose high above her tawny head; she clamped her young lean hands firmly on the high arms. "That's perfect," Andrew said. "And we've got a north light, too. I could pull aside these curtains and run up the shades, I presume."

Rogers waved his hand. "How soon could you begin?" he said, once more himself, imperturbable and amused. "I'd like that old marble mantel in it," he said, "and a corner of my mother's portrait."

"I am having an exhibition in May; I am having some stuff sent out from the east," Andrew told them. "We'll give the portrait of Mrs. Holland the place of honor."

"I can't get used to the idea of there being a Mrs. Rogers Holland at all," Aline said. She rose, stretched her hand to her husband. "We've got to be going," she added. But when Dina and Andrew had preceded them from the room she drew Rogers back, and they talked together while the others waited in the hall.

"When are you going back to Los Altos, Mr. Havens?"

"Oh look here. If I call you Dina I don't think you ought to call me anything but Andy. When are we going back? Well, I don't know. Aline had never seen the place when we were married, and I imagine she finds it pretty crude. I described it to her and she talked as if she'd love it; said she was sick of society and only wanted to get away and rest, but—well, we had pretty heavy rains after Christmas, you know, and the road was washed out. I imagine we'll wait until spring now." Andrew's young, honest face was a mixture of perplexity and indulgent amusement.

"Fixed the date of sitting for your portrait?" Rogers said, joining them.

"I've been saying that I don't think you ought to do that yet," Aline said. She looked angry, almost as if she had been crying.

"Why not?" the painter demanded innocently. "How d'you mean 'yet'? I'd like to have it way and watched them depart in the spring dusk.

"Spoiled. I suppose there was never a woman quite so spoiled in this world," Rogers said, when they were gone, in a tone as if he spoke to himself. "She is determined now that he shall not paint your portrait. Well, we'll see!"

"But—but you love her?" Dina couldn't help saying it. They were back by the dying fire now and standing facing each other.

Remember the Man who Built a Boat in his Basement? He's using it now from Suez to the Solomons

IT'S an old story—about the man who built a boat in his basement and then couldn't get it out. Recently our Army and Navy and Marine Corps had a similar problem. But they found the answer, too.

For example, huge invasion barges such as those shown in the picture—veterans now of Algiers and Guadalcanal—would seem too big to travel anywhere except over the broad sea waters which are their final destination. Yet these boats, big enough to carry 50 men and a tank, were built far inland, traveled to sea by rail. The broad, high clearances of railroads such as the Erie made possible the construction of these boats hundreds or thousands of miles from the ocean.

And they make possible the rail handling of all manner of oversize shipments from coast defense guns to tanks—shipments which couldn't be handled speedily in any other way.

By thus adapting themselves quickly and willingly to the wartime needs of the nation, America's railroads have again proved their usefulness and indispensability. Whether the job is moving invasion barges or troop trains, every railroad man is doing his damndest these days. For we railroaders believe in America, believe it is worth fighting for. And we're going to stay on the job until this war is won, and after—to help rebuild the world.

Beauty Is Your Duty; Always Look Your Best

By BETTY CLARK
AP Beauty Editor

Among your New Year resolutions (the ones you're going to keep) include, "I will do everything I can to look my loveliest at all times."

Even though your beau has gone to war, don't go to seed! Stick to your beauty routines and look like the girl of his dreams when he returns.

Here are some pointers to follow:

1. Keep healthy. Half of beauty is just that. Eat right, sleep plenty, and remember you can't ever catch up on what you missed the night before. If your work is all brain exercise, don't skip a day without a snappy walk of a mile or so. If you're on your feet all day, try brain calisthenics instead—read, write, or listen to music.

2. Pamper your skin and hair. Don't neglect either. Daily care is what will keep them sparkling with beauty. Don't go to bed without removing every sign of makeup and giving your hair fifty strokes with the brush.

3. Mind your makeup. Don't overdo with cosmetics; stress your

Mitchell Tent Meets At Hall

Reports were given last evening by Mrs. Marie Bonham and her committee at the Mary B. Mitchell Tent No. 40. Daughters of Union Veterans, meeting at the hall. It was reported that 11 Christmas baskets had been delivered to needy families over the holiday.

Mrs. Marguerite Fair, president, conducted the business meeting which 25 members attended. The department general orders were read by acting secretary, Mrs. Alice Hunter.

Bingo was the diversion of the evening. The prize for the evening was won by Mrs. Lottie Pittenger. Luncheon was served by Mrs. Mae Miller and her committee.

Installation of new officers will be held at the next meeting, Jan. 11, at the hall.

Young America To Learn How To Be Tough

By MARGARET KERNOBLE
(AP Features Writer)

WASHINGTON—Mama or papa might have a hard time dressing in four minutes. But their sons and daughters soon will know how.

With 8 to 12 minutes of daily conditioning exercises recommended by the U. S. Office of Education for high school students, go many other methods of girding young America for war.

A new manual, soon to be sent to schools over the country, advises teachers to show the students such things as how to march a mile in 12 minutes, walk and run two miles in 20 minutes, walk and run ten miles in two hours, pick up another student from the floor and, using the "fireman's carry," tote him 20 yards in eight seconds, hop on either leg 20 yards in seven seconds.

Apparently the educators don't even dare think this is easy. They've outlined a terrific program of conditioning exercises, obstacle races, sports, wood chopping, plowing, road work and camping.

They say the boys should be able to develop "strength, endurance, stamina, bodily co-ordination and physical skills that will be of direct value and use in the armed forces and war work."

They say the girls should be given "opportunity to achieve, to succeed and to increase morale," that feminine endurance should "be developed only as a result of vigorous activity carried beyond the first onset of fatigue," that "effort should be sustained even though the girls are tired."

The boys won't be the only ones taught fighting and escape methods either. The officials recommend that girls learn such things as "jumping and falling without being hurt," that they acquire "a sense of position in space" and develop ability to carry another without injury to self and "to control their bodies in flight."

Obstacle races apparently are to become as familiar to high school boys and girls tomorrow as slates and sleigh bells were to grandpa yesterday.

A lot of this program is believed necessary because America has gone too far away from the pioneers. Army officers, advising the Office of Education in preparation of this physical fitness program, said:

"American youths do not have the ability to live comfortably and safely in open country."

TO MEET THURSDAY

The Iota Sigma chapter of W. C. T. U. will meet Thursday afternoon at two o'clock at the home of Mrs. Charles Young, 179 East Fourth street. There will be special speakers and special music.

Every locomotive in active service on American railroads now handles about 25 per cent more ton miles than it did in 1939.

Meat Alternates To Be Discussed At Club Meeting

Because of the increasing demands on this nation's meat supply with the prospect of less of it available for home consumption, this important subject of meat will hold the spotlight for still another Westinghouse Health for Victory club program when the organization holds its final meeting of the year Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the company's auditorium. Miss Charlotte Ferris, assistant manager of the Home Economics Institute, will present the program titled "Meat Alternates."

This eleventh program of the Health for Victory club which is made up of the wives of Westinghouse war workers, will emphasize substitute foods which can be used instead of meat to supply the body with the necessary protein requirements.

Miss Ferris will discuss and demonstrate how to prepare many of the protein food sources which can be used in place of meat and which will supply the same body growth and repair requirements.

Two big hams will be given away as door prizes. Food prepared at the meeting will also be given away. All attending will receive the Meal Planning Guide for the month of January.

To aid members in coping with the transportation problem of getting to and from meetings, Mrs. Julia Kiene, manager of the Westinghouse Home Economics Institute, and Mrs. James Anderson, president of the local Health for Victory club, recently organized the membership into teams based on home locations. Under Mrs. Anderson, as colonel, there are six majors, one for each ward of the city. Each major has a group of team captains who are responsible for contacting and arranging group rides to meetings for some 20 members each.

SHIRLEY SHAFFER WEDS CHARLES S. FEINBERG

Ceremony In B'Nai Jacob Temple Sunday Unites Local Couple; Dinner Served at Hotel After Reception at Temple.

MISS SHIRLEY SHARON SHAFFER, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Shaffer, 588 Marion avenue, chose the B'Nai Jacob Temple as the scene for her marriage to Charles S. Feinberg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Komito, 427 Chevy Chase road. The wedding took place Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Rabbi David Rub read the double ring ceremony at the temple which was beautifully decorated with gladioli, pompons, fern and candelabra.

The bride was attired in a beige, long-sleeved frock with sequin trimming. With it she wore a multi-colored flowered hat with a small veil and brown accessories. Her shoulder corsage was of orchids.

Mrs. Shaffer attended her daughter's wedding in a purple sequin-trimmed dress, wearing a corsage of white carnations. Mrs. Komito wore a black seed pearl trimmed ensemble with matching accessories and a corsage of pink carnations.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the temple from 2:30 until 4:30 o'clock. A family dinner was held in the club room of the Mansfield-Leland hotel before the couple left on a wedding trip to New York, and through the East.

When they left on their trip, the new Mrs. Feinberg was wearing a grey plaid suit with a yellow blouse and a strand of pearls, gift of the bridegroom.

The former Miss Shaffer attended Mansfield Senior high school and Ohio State university. She is a member of Epsilon Phi sorority. Mr. Feinberg is a graduate of Glenville high school in Cleveland and at present is employed at Komito's clothing store. On their return they will reside on Bigelow road.

Out of town guests present were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Adler, Mr. and Mrs. Garfinkle, Mr. and Mrs. Klein, Mr. and Mrs. Lifson and sons, Mrs. Weisburn and Miss Klein of Cleveland, and Abe Zinn of Fort Wayne, Ind.

CHRISTOMATHEAN CLASS

The Christomathean class of the First Lutheran church will have a holiday party Wednesday evening at the parish house. A special program has been arranged. Hostesses will be Miss Bertha Landis, Mrs. Mae Goss, Mrs. Lee Remy and Mrs. Verda Barr.

Suppose you set about now gathering typical greeting cards designed to be sent to service men. Eventually your collection will be a colorful record of what the American people thought and felt and did during the war.

As hobbies go, collecting greeting cards would have one other startling advantage: it wouldn't run into money the way a lot of hobbies do. The minute word leaked out what you were up to, chances are all your friends would be saving their greeting cards for you.

Unless they started collecting them themselves.

Pennsylvania Couple Has Wedding In Mansfield

Miss Gladys E. Jones of Scranton, Pa., chose the home of her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Arch Jones, 117 Blymyer avenue, for her Christmas wedding when she exchanged vows with Stanley Frisbie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frisbie of Cortez, Pa.

Rev. Herbert Gurnes of the St. Luke's Lutheran church of this city, read the ceremony before the fireplace, which was beautifully decorated with spruce boughs, pine cones and Christmas candles in pewter candelabra.

George Cottle, talented musician of Cleveland, who is the organist in a Lutheran church there, played several classical selections in addition to the traditional wedding marches.

Miss Jones was given in marriage by her father, Arch Jones, Sr. She wore a wine-colored velvet dress with matching accessories and a cloth of gold hat. Her shoulder corsage was of yellow roses. The bride's mother, who was her only attendant, wore a salute blue ensemble with blue accessories and a corsage of orchids. Mrs. Copple, sister of the bride wore a blue ensemble and a wine frock with cream accessories was worn by Mrs. Arch, Jr.

Immediately after the ceremony a buffet luncheon was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jones for the immediate families. A large wedding cake centered the table when luncheon was served by candlelight.

The new Mrs. Frisbie is a graduate of Scranton high school and Bloomsburg, Pa., State Teachers college. She has been employed for the past four years as a teacher at Cortez. Mr. Frisbie is engaged in defense work at Patterson Field. Mr. and Mrs. Frisbie will reside in Dayton.

How To Curb Nail Biting Of Children

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

Nail-biting and other nervous habits among children were appallingly prevalent for several years before Pearl Harbor and inevitably they are increasing now.

A grandmother writes of a jittery girl 12 years old.

"Dear Dr. Myers: Our problem is a girl of 12, very intelligent, always ahead in her class at school, can play things she hears on the piano and took only two terms of music lessons. She is very nervous, biting her fingernails when not at work, or picking at herself. She keeps little scabs all over her arms and legs or face.

"We talked, bribed, persuaded but no results.

"She is a very loving child, thinks lots of her mother and home, stays by her mother, and won't let her go out of her sight. She has a brother 9 and sister 6. This girl is the best worker I have ever seen, always doing everything her mother does, cooking meals, etc. If there is anything to do she is ready to do it. If you can help us we will be ever so thankful. Am sending self-addressed stamped envelope for reply.

My reply was addressed to the mother, including the following:

Do have that child carefully and thoroughly examined by the family doctor who in turn may refer you to a skin specialist. I hope also the doctor advises you concerning the girl's diet. Be sure she gets ample sleep, even more than the average child her age, and plenty of quiet reaction, as in making things with her hands for fun or some reading.

Try to have a good time in the family circle and to bring her out as courage her to talk and see that the younger ones let her have the opportunity to do so. Get her to help you in the household planning. Now and then go alone with her shopping. The younger children can have this privilege later. Get your friends to help build this girl up so she feels sure she stands as well with them and her family as the younger children do.

She needs playmates of her own age and to get away from you more and you away from her. Set the stage so some girls her age will come to your home and she will go to theirs. When her friends come, see that the younger children mind their own business, do not snoop or tag along. They also should have playmates of their own age so they will bother her less.

Don't scold this child or nag her about her nervous habits, since that would only make her worse. Trust that they will decrease gradually as she grows more serene, but do not look for quick results. Be happy if you see some improvement after a few weeks.

I am enclosing my special bulletin on "Jealousy," also the one on "Nail-biting and other nervous habits," made available to any other reader without cost who will write me in care of this paper enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

Solving Parent Problems.

Q. Do you have some charts or tests which a parent can use to find the I, Q, of a child under five or six?

A. No; nobody has tests. Only a psychologist can ascertain the I, Q, of a child, and even he can make mistakes at it. I do have charts which will aid you to find out roughly the degree of development of your child, to be had by writing me in care of this paper enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it. I indicate the exact age of your child.

"The Authority on Authority"

NOT WHAT THEY SEEM

MANY CARD combinations really operate quite differently from what at first glance appears likely. Study of the mathematics of a situation will reveal many peculiarities which seem to belie the obvious. Leading toward an ace-jack is one of these. In some circumstances, the best play is to seek the one chance out of four that both the king and queen are together in the hand which must play before your own honors. In others, it is different, depending on the total number of cards you hold in the suit, the possession of such secondary cards as the nine and eight, and the bidding.

Pretty bidding, that. North's failure to support spades the first time made it clear he did not have four of them. Too bad the contract was fumbled.

After West led the club A and 4 to the K, South, of course went after trumps. He led the 5 and finessed the J the K winning. After the declarer won the returned heart he led to the spade A, and he now had no way to avoid losing two more trump tricks, being set one.

South had several ways to play that suit. One was to lead the 9 first and let it ride to the K. By finessing, the dummy could win the next two trump tricks, only one more being lost to West. This play could beat the contract only if both the K and Q were with East, in a four-card holding which included the 10.

A kibitzer pointed out still another way, which was to lead to the A first. If nothing dropped, then let him lead the J from dummy, so that if East had the Q, now doubleton, he would cover and the new singleton K would fall on the same trick. Of course by that method, if he dropped a singleton K or Q at the start, as he would, he could lose only one trump trick and thus make an extra.

Care of Eyes Is Important Beauty Aid

By MME. QUI VIVE

Factory blazes are doing a fade out. Girls are working harder, eating better. Cheeks are rosier, as nature intended them to be. The eyebrow has ended its term as a beauty whim. The forehead scimitar is back to first principles, neatly streamlined with no wayfarers around the edges. The lipstick, like nail polish, is less vivid. In beauty shops, the masters and mistresses of our facial scenery are concentrating on eye charm. Which is as it should be. The eyes are the most interesting feature.

It has been reported that Greta Garbo places a thin blue shadow across her eyelids midway of their width. It does things. You might get some blue eye shadows and try it. Not in the daytime, however. But some evening when you are trailing out for the festive occasions you want to impress. Shadows, even the faintest, are not to be seen in the light of day, which makes them too revealing.

Don't overlook the good looks value of eyelid lubricating. No powder there; not a smudge. Eyes must look dewy. You can get creams made for the purpose. You can use mineral oil or petrolatum works fine.

By lubricating the lids you will do a good turn to your eyelashes, for they thrive on oil. You can apply it with an eyebrow brush or massage it in lightly with your fingers. They'll soon be longer and thicker, and won't you be proud of them if you have worn skimpy little whisks of winkers?

If they aren't dark enough, use mascara. Doesn't do a bit of harm. Let the eye fringes rest on your finger, put on the coloring agent with a tiny brush. Don't ever consider beading them. That messy business is the special privilege of ladies of the stage and silver screen.

Clipping the lashes won't make them longer; it will just make them stubby.

Eyes take pretty good care of themselves. They have their own washing and oiling systems. All you have to do is not to abuse them, unless some irritation or infection sets up, in which case you are to scamper to an eye specialist.

The oiling system is interesting. On the inner side of the eyelid are tiny glands. At every wink, oil is carried over the surface of the corner, keeping the delicate tissues from drying out. When foreign matter gets into the eyes, tears flow to wash it away.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

I forced my voice to composure, lest Gus' emotional equilibrium be upset.

"Look on the other side of that page," I said, and he obeyed, saying quickly, "There's no picture on that page."

I quickly tore out the page which held the personal column. "Now," I directed, "look through the rest of the paper and see if you find any other page that might be the one."

He unhesitatingly discarded every page but one, which he showed me, saying "This might be the one, but it doesn't look to me quite so sure as the one you tore out. But it's one of those two, I'm sure."

Hides Evidence.

"Watch out!" Joe called, and quickly I tore out the page Gus had just indicated. Folding the two pages together, I put them into my handbag. At the same time Gus held up one of the parcels to me and gesticulated toward it.

"They didn't tie this right," he said. "I'd better tie it over or you're likely to drop it."

His byplay was wasted, however, for the doorman did not come to the car. But I knew he would give us another look when he returned.

But I did not wait for that inspection. I gathered my parcels together and spoke quickly to Gus.

"I'm going now," I said, "and I'll tell my father what you have just told me."

Gus helped me out and his low response, while earnest, gave no clue to the subject of our talk.

"Thank you, Missis Graham," he said. "I very glad. Now we wait around corner till your father send us word where to go. Goodbye."

"Goodbye," I replied, and then the doorman was at my side, holding out his hand for my parcels.

"Oh, I couldn't think of troubling you," I said smiling. "They are very light."

I caught a glint of disappointment in his eyes, but I could not decide at first whether it was because I had no occasion to give him a tip, or because he wanted a good look at my parcels. I leaned to the second solution, however, for tips mean nothing to a man in the pay of the international conspirators.

My father was still in the living room alone, and first answered my questioning look.

Royal Fugitive Asleep.

"Georges is asleep on your bed," he said. "He was exceedingly fatigued, for the sudden transition from danger to safety had been too much for him. I was afraid he was going to collapse entirely, so I put him to bed. You won't disturb him if you go through your room, for he will not waken for hours unless I rouse him."

"I shall not need to go in for anything," I told him. "and I think I have accomplished all your errands."

Serve Fish On Meatless Days Is Suggestion

By BETSY NEWMAN

Let us conserve meat even if we are celebrating the holidays. Baked stuffed fish is a delicious dinner choice, so let us serve it.

Today's Menu.

Baked Fish.

One 4-pound fish, cleaned, trimmed but not split; 4 strips bacon; cooking oil; salt.

Stuffing.

One quart bread cubes; 3 table-spoons finely chopped onion; 2 table-spoons finely crushed sage leaves; 1/2 teaspoon black pepper; 1/2 teaspoon salt; 1/2 cup cooked celery, chopped; 4 table-spoons hot celery liquid; 6 table-spoons hot melted butter.

Mix salt and pepper into liquids, then stir in celery. Pour mixture over bread with which sage and onion have been mixed, stirring so as to moisten it thoroughly, and cover for a few moments. Dip fish into a solution made in the proportion of 2 table-spoons salt to 1 cup cold water, allow to stand 5 minutes, drain, slit skin in several places and brush skin with cooking oil. Lay 2 strips of bacon in greased baking pan. Stuff fish tie with string to hold in stuffing, and place it on bacon strips, lay 2 strips of bacon on fish, place in center of oven and bake for 10 minutes at 500 degrees F., then lower temperature to 400 degrees.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cates and son of Akron spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Bert Hess and other relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Halsey and daughter spent Friday with Mr. and Mrs. William Rutherford in Mt. Vernon.

Molded Tomato and Cottage Cheese Salad.

3 cup cooked tomatoes
1/2 cup celery leaves
1/2 small onion
6 cloves
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon sugar
2 Tbsps. plain gelatin
1/2 cup tomato juice
1 Tbsp. vinegar
1 1/2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 1/2 cup cottage cheese
Lettuce or salad greens

Combine canned tomatoes, celery leaves, onion and seasonings, and boil 10 minutes. Soften gelatin in cold tomato juice; strain cooked tomatoes; add gelatin and stir until it is dissolved; add lemon juice and vinegar. Cool until mixture starts to congeal, then turn into ring mold. Press cottage cheese into the mold in large spoonfuls, and chill until firm.

HOROSCOPE

FOR WEDNESDAY, DEC. 30

Dramatic events and quite unpredictable adventures and experiences of far-reaching effect on the future years and their good fortune are read from very interesting planetary configurations. There may be unforeseen upheavals and changes or readjustments of the affairs both business and private. All relations of life may be spectacularly set to achieve much importance and fulfillment, especially if engineered by ingenuity, innovation, energy and skill.

Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of a year of unprecedented opportunities for attaining spectacular goals and exalted ambitions. Bold projects, indomitable will and energy, fortified by keen insight, sound tactics and logical objectives, should reach high goals of achievement.

A child born on this day should possess all the talents and qualities making for conspicuous and long-lasting success and prosperity. Highly intellectual and keenly sensitive and emotional, it may provoke opposition.

WORRIED ABOUT BUTTER RATIONING?

Make 2-lbs. of Delicious Spread Using 1-lb. Butter WITH KNOX GELATINE SAVE 39¢

(Or more, based on average prices)

It's Easy...Here's How:

KNOX SPREAD

1 envelope Knox Gelatine
1/4 cup cold water
1 1/4-cup. can evaporated milk
1 lb. butter
1 teaspoonful salt

1. Soften gelatine in 1/4 cup cold water.

2. Dissolve thoroughly over hot water.

3. Cut butter into small pieces and heat over hot water until soft enough to beat. But do not melt the butter.

4. Add dissolved gelatine and salt to the milk. Gradually whip milk into butter with a Dover egg beater or electric mixer until milk does not separate.

5. Add coloring if desired.

6. Pack in dish or container and place in refrigerator until hard. Keep in refrigerator when not in use.

NOTE: Fresh milk may be substituted for evaporated milk, in which case use a pint of milk (preferably top half of a quart bottle), and soften gelatine in 1/2 cup milk taken from that pint.

For Joyful Cough Relief, Try This Home Mixture

Real Relief. Big Saving. So Easy. No Cooking.

This splendid recipe is used by millions every year, because it makes such a dependable, effective medicine for coughs due to colds. It's so easy to mix—a child could do it.

From any drugstore get 1/2 ounces of Pinex, a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well-known for its soothing effect on throat and bronchial membrane.

Then make a syrup by stirring two cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. It's no trouble at all. No cooking needed. Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup.

Put the Pinex into a pint bottle and add your syrup. This gives you a full pint of very effective and quick-acting cough medicine, and you get about four times as much for your money. It never spoils, and is very pleasant—children love it.

You'll be amazed by the way it takes hold of coughs, giving you delightful relief. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membrane, and helps clear the air passages. Money refunded if not pleased in every way.

GRANTS SECOND INCREASE FOR CITY WORKERS

Shelby Employees to Get Extra $10 Monthly Beginning Feb. 1; Hour Rate Up.

SHELBY—Second $10 a month pay raise for city employees within the past year period was granted by city council during its semi-monthly session Monday night.

Effective Feb. 1, the wage increase includes a flat $10 a month raise for salaried employees and five cents an hour for hourly workers.

The increase will mean an additional annual expenditure of about $6,700 from the general fund and will be given to 56 city employees.

The first raise was granted Dec. 30, 1941. Both increases were to provide additional money for the employees to take care of the increase in the cost of living.

The council also approved a new building code for the city, setting up an inspection and permit fee and setting the minimum cost of materials for constructing any residence in the city at $500.

Under the code, no addition or trailer shall be built or used as a place of residence or as an accommodation for over-night guests unless such cabin or trailer is situated on a plot of ground containing at least 1,000 square feet. Each cabin and trailer must first be approved by the inspector of buildings before it can be used as a place of human habitation.

The street commission will serve as the inspector of buildings. A fee of $2 will be charged for any construction or addition up to an area of 600 square feet. Permits for areas over that size cost $3. The present fee is a flat $2.

Penalty for violation is a fine of $1 to $50, or the city can get an injunction to stop the construction, or both.

Floyd Brown of Marion was required as the sanitary engineer for the water and sewer plants for a six-month period starting Jan. 1. His salary is $75 a month.

Finance Director Chester P. Monn was authorized to transfer the various fund balances to the funds where there were shortages in the appropriation ordinance.

A bond ordinance for $500 to pay the property owner's portion of a sanitary sewer improvement near Walnut street was passed.

Mayor W. P. Morris told council that the Toledo engineering firm working on the preliminary drawings for a dam across the Blackfork river would have a report ready in time for the next council session on Jan. 4.

DANCES FEATURE HOLIDAY WEEK FOR ASHLAND LODGES AND CLUBS

ASHLAND—Two annual holiday dances were held last night. They were the annual dinner dance of the Ashland country club and the annual St. John's dance and card party of Mason and Eastern Stars held at the Masonic Temple. An orchestra under the direction of Guy Farnsworth played for the former while Nels Blocker's orchestra provided music for dancing for the St. John's dance.

Held this noon at the Ashland Country club was the concluding bridge luncheon for the year, an annual event of the holiday season. Arrangements were in charge of a committee headed by Mrs. Frank R. Elliott. Prizes were given for contract and auction bridge and bingo and also a door prize.

The annual Christmas dance of the Ashland country club was held at the club house Saturday night. Music for dancing was provided by a phonograph rather than by an orchestra as in former years. Sixty-five couples attended the dance for which Mr. and Mrs. Francis E. Myers were chairman.

The annual New Year open house will be observed at the Masonic Temple Friday afternoon and evening for Masons and their sons. A dinner will be served at 6 p. m. Leo F. Stout is in charge of dinner arrangements and Robert Schultz is chairman of the reception and entertainment committee.

A New Year eve party for Ashland country club members and their guests will be held at the clubhouse beginning at 11 p. m. Thursday and continuing to 4 a. m. when breakfast will be served. The party is being arranged by the steward of the club.
